Norwalk residents protest expansion of Hindu temple

• Residents, property owners say parking is insufficient for temple's expansion.

By Alex Dominguez Contributor

NORWALK -The Norwalk City Council unanimously approved plans for an expansion and remodel of a Hindu Temple on Tuesday despite a fair amount of disapproval from the Temple's immediate neighbors.

The Radha Krishna Mandir Temple, located at 12634 Pioneer Blvd., is currently neighbored by a Denny's restaurant, a former Pizza Hut building, which the Temple now owns, and a residential neighborhood. The plans call for several site improvements so that the temple and vacated property can function as one, expanding the temple to connect to the existing restaurant building.

A Lot Merger application was also filed with the city to merge the two existing parking lots into one, which is currently in the process of being approved.

The plans were originally viewed on April 23, 2014 by the Norwalk Planning Commission, however the item was tabled to allow additional time to resolve parking related issues due to objections from the property owner of the neighboring Denny's. A year later on April 22, the Commission adopted resolutions to approve the project and to recommend Council approval with a unanimous 3-0 vote, with two commissioners being absent.

The project quickly drew public scrutiny, and the Council received negative public comments regarding its tentative approval.

Some community members, who called themselves "Neighbors Against the Big Temple," even purchased a quarter-page ad in the Norwalk Patriot to condemn the project and encourage the community to express their objections at Tuesday' meeting. The ad was published on Friday, May 29.

The meeting was attended by many of the individuals who attend the temple for their religious needs, as well as those who opposed the project.

A representative of Lun Tsan Chiang Trust, who owns the property currently inhabited by Denny's, said that they had no issue with the Temple, "just add parking." A letter written by Leib and Leib, who represents the Chiang trust, said that "The Church membership is already too voluminous for their existing 61 spaces, so they regularly overflow into Denny's parking. The Chiang Trust has remained neighborly and not towed their vehicles, so the practice continues, and the burden Temple Vice President of the Board Deepak (DJ) Jhaveri denied all School will induct six alumni into its claims that parking was insufficient and that the population of the temple would grow after expansion and provided proof to the council, becoming increasingly passionate.

Jhaveri even suggested that there was some other factor besides city

"God says 'love your neighbors." These people love neither God nor their neighbors," Jhaveri said. .. They are being biased and discriminatory against the minority. They should know that we are building only as per the City's codes and guidelines."

Many of the members of the community who appeared before the Council on Tuesday expressed concerns for the effect of the Temple's expansion on the nearby neighborhood, especially during festival times.

One Norwalk citizen who lives nearby the religious building says that she had struggled with the Temple on many occasions before.

"My biggest complaint here is the noise. Because you are next to a residential area, you should be respectful to your neighbors as I would be respectful to you as well,"

"The issue here is nuisance. The issue here is being a good neighbor," said another community member who lives in the community behind the temple. "I understand they have their festivals and I respect that... to believe that with this expansion there will not be an increase in the population of this congregation is unrealistic...I don't have a problem with them having their festivals, but my goodness why do they have to have them for ten days until midnight. I am furious with the city officials of Norwalk for allowing this to happen."

However, Council members were quick to remind those in attendance that the meeting was about approval of the expansion project, and though their concerns over the impact of religious festivals on the surrounding community were valid, it was a different discussion for another time.

Council member Rodarte believed that the real issue between the Hindu Temple and its residential neighbors was a lack of understanding of cultural differences.

"I've been to the temple during one of your festivals," Rodarte said. "I don't know if you've ever invited the neighbors over so maybe they could better understand what your festivals are about. That's part of being a good neighbor; maybe that's a good idea for you guys to do...maybe just take some time to get to know each other."

"It's a story of gratefulness that marks the changes that have taken place," said Burgess, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Downey. "I attempted to capture the change through a group of friends and a small town."

Lincoln Street pulls on Burgess' experience growing up in Kansas when children were "provincial, naïve, ignorant, clueless, and grossly unaware of the ways of the world."

Goodyear blimp flies over St. John Bosco

BELLFLOWER - The iconic Goodyear blimp "Spirit of America," which has soared above Southern California for the past 14 years, celebrated the 75th anniversary of St. John Bosco High School on May 21 during one of its final journeys.

The blimp will be decommissioned in August after conducting its final tour of the west coast beginning on June 2.

Carrying the president of St. John Bosco High School, Paul Escala, as well as several photographers, the blimp departed from its home base in Carson on the morning of May 21, destined for the campus of St. John Bosco High School in Bellflower.

While scheduled to fly over the campus at noon, the blimp was delayed about 20 minutes due to strong headwinds.

Bosco students welcomed the blimp by forming a large number "75" on the school's lacrosse field, commemorating the 75th anniversary of St. John Bosco High School which was founded in 1940. Students welcomed the blimp by waving and cheering as the airship circled the campus, and many took souvenir photos with their cell phones.

"We are incredibly grateful to the folks at Goodyear Airship Operations in Carson," said Escala. "This is a unique and fun way to help us celebrate Bosco's 75th anniversary."

Founded in 1940 when Bellflower was principally an agricultural community, St. John Bosco High School was originally an elementary boarding school with students through 8th grade. It was transformed into a high school in the early 1950's, and it graduated its first high school class of only sixteen students in 1956.

Today, Bosco has 820 students in grades 9 to12.

Bosco's 75th anniversary will culminate in September, with a major celebration to be held on the school's campus.

DUSD celebrates achievements of SkillsUSA students opportunities for Downey Unified students to be college and career ready, as well as globally competitive, on June , the Downey community gathered to celebrate the students who competed at the SkillsUSA State Championships

The second annual SkillsUSA Banquet was held at the Rio Hondo Event Center on Monday evening, with the support of the Downey Unified Board of Education, Career Technical Education (CTE) staff, and Downey Unified's industry partners from McCarthy Building Companies, Inc. and the Masonry Industry Training Association (MITA).

The banquet opened with president of the Board of Education, Tod Corrin, addressing the crowd of approximately 300 people. The Mistress of Ceremony, Warren High School senior Debora Jeong who will attend Cal State Long Beach in the fall, and Master of Ceremony, Downey High School senior Aron Ramirez who will attend Stanford University after graduation, next took the stage welcoming guests and illustrating to the crowd their journey through the SkillsUSA experience.

Both moving on to the national championships at the end of June, these two young individuals said they have been changed by competing in SkillsUSA.

"SkillsUSA gives us [students] a chance to compete in what we love and it teaches us things you can't learn in a text book," stated Jeong.

Continuing the evening, Jeong and Ramirez called upon each teacher advisor to congratulate their students in specific areas of competition. Downey and Warren high school students competed in categories such as: Robotics Technology, Crime Scene Investigation, Electrical, Plumbing, Masonry, Photography, Principles of Engineering Technology, Criminal Justice, Firefighting, Esthetics, Extemporaneous Speaking, and the list continued.

Following the applause of the SkillsUSA student recognitions, keynote speaker Kris Nordbak took the stage. Currently the Project Director at McCarthy Building Companies, Inc., one of America's premier construction companies, and a Warren High School alumni, Nordbak said he is passionate about SkillsUSA and what it provides

-Providing SkillsUSA "puts you ahead of the competition."

> Nordbak illustrated his own career journey after high school and shared with students that finding a career you are truly passionate about is worth the

"SkillsUSA gives students the opportunity to find something they love before graduating from high school," expressed Nordbak. "Don't be afraid to try new things and keep looking for what you love."

Downey Unified has a partnership with Nordbak and the McCarthy Building Companies, Inc., providing hands-on and interactive opportunities for students. McCarthy professinals with communicate students continuously, visiting classrooms as guest speakers and acting as mentors, giving Downey Unified students the competitive edge that will help them succeed after high school.

Honoring a student from each of the comprehensive high schools, the awards for SkillsUSA Student of the Year was next to be announced. A senior at Downey High and a Downey Unified student since elementary, Yamato Sasaki was called to the stage. Beginning his SkillsUSA journey as a freshman and attending UCLA in the fall to study Engineering, Sasaki received a gold medal at the state level and will be representing California in the category of Related Technical Already holding two certifications in construction technology and Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) certified, Edgar Munoz, was also presented the Student of the Year award. A senior, Munoz is currently the construction technology project manager for Warren High School's SkillsUSA Chapter, heading a variety of student lead construction projects across Downey Unified.

To conclude the second annual SkillsUSA Banquet, CTE and STEM Director Phil Davis called the gold medal recipients to the stage. Finishing out the state championships with a total of 26 gold medals, these Downey Unified students will be traveling on June 22, 2015, to Louisville, KY, to represent the state of California.

In addition to this great fete, two students from Warren High School were elected by their peers to serve as SkillsUSA state officers for the coming to students, telling the students that year. Gregory Garcia and Anayansi

Water use

Dear Editor:

Recently in the Downey Patriot we learned a large restaurant project is underway in the old Ford location in north Downey. ("Restaurant Development to be Built on Downey Ford Site," 5/28/15). Another giant building project is now under construction in south Downey.

Near my home, several large two-story homes are under construction. A large, newly-constructed apartment complex in downtown Downey is now finished and renting. The list goes on and on this frantically-paced construction of new buildings.

We are currently in the biggest drought condition we've seen in hundreds of years with no possibility of rain yet all this furious-paced construction is either finished or under current construction. Water is necessary for construction and it is absolutely necessary for our lives. Without it we die.

All of this construction, of course, has its many advantages to the economy but in drought conditions it is nothing short of madness. One large soft drink company in our city is said to use 1 million gallons of water in the production of its product, and don't forget what we use daily.

On early morning walks it never ceases to amaze me at the large number of beautiful lawns in town. Frequently sprinkler systems keep the water caused by the courts when handing flowing with large amounts of it flowing into the gutter and hence into the ocean. Slowly, much too slowly, more brown lawns are appearing, indicating some people are reducing their water consumption.

Several months ago, this writer in a letter to the Downey Patriot quoted this statement by John Wesley Powell in 1889. It is as true today as when he made it: "When all the rivers are used, when all the creeks in the ravines, when all the brooks, when all the springs are used, when all the reservoirs along the streams are used, when all the canyon waters are taken, when all the artesian waters are taken up, when all the wells are sunk or dug that can be dug in all this arid region, there is still not sufficient water to irrigate all

Re-entering society - and the voting booth

By John Kiriakou

Following the recent uprising in Baltimore, Maryland Governor Larry Hogan promised that he'd work to reduce crime in the state. He also affirmed that Marylanders who'd been convicted of felonies and done their time should be able to reenter society as free citizens.

But the Republican governor still vetoed a measure that would have restored voting rights to felons who completed their sentences. Supporters are optimistic they have enough votes to override the governor's veto, but for now that stroke of a pen keeps 40,000 formerly incarcerated Marylanders

This kind of voting ban isn't unique to Maryland. Indeed, the Brennan Center for Justice calculates that 35 states still disenfranchise people who are no longer in prison.

Virginia, where I live, is one of those states.

Before my incarceration for blowing the whistle on CIA torture, I voted in every election, casting my ballots for everything from county board on up to president. I don't think it makes any sense for Richmond to deny me this right now that I'm no longer behind bars.

Nationwide, nearly 6 million Americans who paid their debt to society still aren't permitted to vote. That's one in every 40 adults.

Felon disenfranchisement is rooted in racist Jim Crow laws of the post-Civil War era. They were meant to keep former slaves, often convicted on trumped-up felony charges, from ever voting. The modern-day mass incarceration of black men on drug charges in particular has the same result — the disenfranchisement of an entire class of people.

Federal efforts to encourage states to allow ex-felons to vote have been bipartisan but ineffective.

The Democracy Restoration Act, introduced earlier this year, could re-enfranchise over 4 million people. But despite support from Maryland Democrat Ben Cardin and Kentucky Republican Rand Paul, the legislative tracking service GovTrack says the bill has no chance.

Fortunately, there's more action at the state level.

Florida, for example, currently forces ex-felons to wait at least 16 years before petitioning to get their voting rights back. But in 2016, Floridians will vote on an initiative to erase the waiting period, which would allow all of the state's 2 million ex-felons to register.

The Brennan Center proposes that any new law contain four elements to the TPP because they worry it will cost ensure that all citizens can vote.

First, all felons must be free to vote from the day they walk out of prison. Second, all Americans facing criminal charges should be made to understand that they will lose their voting rights, but that those rights will be restored upon release from prison.

Third, states should mark felons as "inactive" voters while incarcerated, rather than striking them from voter rolls.

Finally, each state's chief election officer should be mandated with informing other government agencies and the public about the law.

That sounds reasonable to me. After all, if a felon does his time but isn't allowed a voice in his community, why would he become invested in it? What incentive does he have to establish roots and become a law-abiding citizen?

At least a dozen states allow felons to vote upon completion of their sentences. Maine and Vermont allow even incarcerated felons to vote. The

Certainly, the rest of the country can enter the 21st century and reenfranchise the millions of Americans who want to be productive members of society.

Now's the time to get it done.

Gov. Brown's amnesty for the poor is a good start

Governor Jerry Brown recently called the despair poor Californians feel having gone through municipal violations such as speeding and going through a red light a "hellhole of desperation."

Cases where an unemployed labor worker was cited with a minor traffic violation costing $76 for a first-time offender. No taxpayer dollars for 'Bank of Boeing'

By Ryan Alexander

Have you heard of the Export-Import Bank? It's little-known yet high on the list of special-interest priorities these days.

Created in 1934, this government agency loans money to foreign buyers of American products and gives U.S. exporters loan guarantees. It also provides financing for ventures that supposedly can't get private backing.

Backers of the bank claim that it supports U.S. jobs. In reality, it's a favor factory for politically wellconnected corporations trolling for handouts.

Indeed, the bank is a poster child for special interest favoritism.

The TPP gang that can't shoot straight

By Dean Baker

As Congress gets ready to vote on whether to "fast-track" the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), its proponents are making weaker and more far-fetched arguments for the deal. And they keep getting their facts wrong and their logic twisted.

This hit parade of failed arguments should convince any fence sitters that this is a bad deal. After all, you don't have to make up nonsense to sell a good product.

Topping the list of failed arguments was a condescending USA Today editorial from early May.

It admonished unions who oppose manufacturing jobs. The newspaper's editors summarily dismissed this idea, blaming the huge manufacturing job losses in recent years - amid a doubling of manufacturing output on productivity growth, not imports.

The editorial rested its case on Commerce Department data that doesn't actually measure manufacturing output. The correct data showed a sharp slowdown in the

TIPS TO KEEP YOUR FAMILY SAFE THIS SUMMER

Summer is the time for fun outside with family and friends. However, it's also when many accidents occur around the home.

Keep your family, friends and neighbors safe with these tips.

Around the pool

Swimming pools and spas may be fun to play and lounge in; however, children and pets can get hurt in and around them. Follow these safety tips to ensure everyone's safety around the pool*

- · Never leave children unattended.
- · Keep children away from pool drains, pipes and openings.
- · Make sure everyone knows how to swim
- · Learn CPR and first aid-they can save lives.
- · Don't swim if the pool has flat, broken or missing drain covers. Drains can suction hair and body parts, causing serious injury to children and adults.
- · Install a fence at least four tall around the perimeter of the pool.
- Make sure pool and spa covers work.
- · Use self-closing and self-latching gates.

Around the home and yard

Enjoy your time around your home and yard this summer and make sure it's free of hazards with these tips

- Supervise children whenever they're outside, and keep them inside when you're mowing or trimming.
- Always grill in an open, well-ventilated area, and keep children and pets at least three feet away from the grill.
- · Put away hoses when not in use to prevent falls.
- Remove dead trees before they become hazard.
- Keep paint, fertilizers and hazardous chemicals out of reach of children and animals.
- · Put away lawn and garden tools and machinery when you're finished with them.
- · Maintain lawn mowers, trimmers and other eqipment, and use them as instructed to prevent injuries.

· Put ladders and other home maintenance items away when not in use.

MAYOR'S CORNER: Downey bustling with excitement

Hello Downey.

We are halfway through the year and the City of Downey has been bustling with excitement and living true to its motto of "Future Unlimited." We continue to move forward and improve the quality of life for our residents with ongoing community development projects and lively recreational events.

The Downey Library Volunteer and Major Donor Awards Lunch event took place last month to give recognition to volunteers who spend countless hours volunteering to better the lives of others. They are an inspiration and great role models to follow and we are fortunate to have them in our City. If you are looking for a way to give back to the community, come to the library and discover summer opportunities. You can speak with representatives about what the volunteers do and start this summer with a plan.

City of Downey honored the Public Works staff with an Awards Ceremony for the Public Works 2015 Employees of the Year. The men and women of our Public Works department maintain the infrastructure and services that provide us with our daily quality of life. I would like to congratulate our Public Works 2015 Employees of the Year: Ed Estrella, Grissel Chavez and Randy Humphrey, and thank them for all their hard work they do for our City and the citizens of Downey.

As Mayor, public safety in the City of Downey is a top priority. We are fortunate enough to have resources such as Andrew Stevens the city's, Emergency Manager, available to train us on community disaster planning and volunteer disaster relief. He recently represented Downey at the CFED-California Fire EMS Disaster, and elite symposium where firefighters, EMS personnel, law enforcement, emergency managers, and public health officials from across the state networked and trained together. With this kind of knowledge on hand, the City is addressing our greatest earthquake vulnerabilities proactively and strategically.

The Promenade construction is continuing at a vigorous pace. A majority of the main road has been completed, the 24 Hour Fitness building has been erected, and the adjoining building that will host the 16 screen CineMark Theaters is currently under construction. I am happy to announce two new tenants have joined the Promenade: Floor & Décor and Green Olive Restaurant. Two new Starbucks locations are also coming to Downey. Both will be on Imperial Blvd, one on the corner of Bellflower Blvd and the second off Paramount Blvd. This is part of our ongoing commitment to our residents to provide big city amenities while keeping our small town feel.

Summer is just around the corner and the City of Downey has worked hard to put together a schedule full of fun, safe and exciting activities and events for our residents. The Summer 2015 City News and Parks & Recreation Guide was mailed early last month and features numerous activities to keep little ones busy during school vacation and to enjoy what our City has to offer.

What better way to Discover Downey than by discovering the library? There are an array of classes available in June including free computer classes for adults and kids. Don't miss out on the "Book Your Summer" all-ages all summer reading program: Help Downey read ONE MILLION MINUTES and enter to win raffle prizes all summer! The library has chosen its winners for the new library card design. Check out the winning designs and get your new card today. Lastly, the library has partnered with the Downey Civic Theatre to co-present a six-part Monday family performance series beginning June 22nd. For details and times, as well as more information on Storytimes and Family Story Nights please visit the library's website at www.downeylibrary.org.

Another event that promises to add to a memorable summer is the Rooftop Concert Series. This free event celebrates live music, art and performances. Bring the family, grab dinner from one of our local downtown restaurants, and enjoy the night overlooking the Downey skyline. In honor of being chosen as a host town for the Special Olympic World games, we will open this year's event with Irish band Slugger O'Toole and the Kerry Dance Troupe on June 24th in Downtown Downey.

Talking about the Special Olympics World Games, there is still time to volunteer and to be a part of this wonderful event. Please visit the City's website, www.downeyca.org, and search for the Volunteer Interest Card to learn more about the Host Town Volunteer Program including "Fans in the Stands" opportunities. In addition, our official Downey Host Town fundraising merchandise is available at the Parks & Recreation office and at major upcoming City events. To view the merchandise, log on to our City website or City Facebook page. All proceeds go toward supporting the Special Olympics athletes' visit. The actual Host Town program will take place July 21st to the 24th with a concert to welcome our guests at the Downey Civic Center on July 22nd.

The Rio Hondo Golf Club will have its annual Music on the Greens event on June 28th featuring classic rock tribute band Kings of 88. The public is invited to attend a free community open house with free activities throughout the afternoon. This is a great opportunity to come see what Rio Hondo Golf Club has to offer including two lakes, pristine fairways, a driving range and banquet and restaurant facility.

Lastly, I am pleased to announce that radio station KNX 1070 will be at Porto's on Friday, June 12th to record its live show "On Your Corner". The Downey community will be highlighted including Porto's, the Taco Bell building, Bob's Big Boy Broiler, and the oldest operating McDonald's among many others. I will be on the air promoting our city. Tune-in to KNX 1070 and listen with Downey pride!

It's a wonderful time to live in the City of Downey and I am honored to serve as your Mayor!

As always, the City Council welcomes your comments, concerns, or questions. You can reach me or any other Council Member by calling 562-904-7274, or by using the links to our email addresses located on the "Mayor & City Council" page of the City website at www.downeyca.org.

Humanitarian Society members pitch in at author event

LA CANADA FLINTRIDGE – Six Warren High School Humanitarian Society members traveled to the San Gabriel Valley to turn the La Cañada Flintridge Library into a special event venue for the eagerly awaited appearance of New York Times bestselling author Lisa See last Saturday

The students included Humanitarian Society President Andrew Del Valle, , Sarah Aguilar, Ashley (Liz) Torres, Angie Franco, Bernard Castillo and Felipe Dorado. Saturday was Ashley's birthday, and she chose to spend it by helping her fellow Humanitarian Society members move dozens of tables and more than 200 chairs in the process of turning the usually quiet library into a venue for Lisa's presentation.

When they were done, the students had helped librarians Mark Totten, Elaine Braddock and Sarah LoVerme create a wonderful look for the library's most significant literary event since Ray Bradbury spoke at a special Saturday night event 32 years ago.

"The kids had a great time," said Warren Humanitarian Society Advisor Jackie Pardo. "They loved meeting Lisa See, who was so gracious and complementary of their work. And of course, they loved getting delicious Georgee's pizza as a special dinner-time treat after their work was done!"

Virtually every seat was filled for the event, which was sponsored by the Friends of La Cañada Flintridge Library. During her presentation, the renowned author discussed her creative process for virtually all of her books throughout a career that has made her one of America's most beloved

Once the students finished their work in the foothills, they traveled back to Downey for another volunteer assignment that lasted until 10 p.m. Saturday night. It's just this sort of remarkably selfless service that has earned the Humanitarian Society a well-deserved reputation as one of the most effective student service clubs in all of Southern California.

"I had heard that these students were special, but the way they worked as a team was very impressive," Mark said. "They did an absolute fantastic job moving some very heavy pieces and setting the room up so beautifully. Without them we never could have totally changed the look of the library in just 40 minutes, which was all the time we had between the time we closed and then reopened for the Lisa See event."

"We knew this assignment was going to be very challenging, but these wonderful students made it look easy and did their work with smiles on their faces," said Rosemary Hook, the President of the Friends of La Cañada Flintridge Library. "I hope they'll be there to help the next time we have a major event, because their volunteer efforts helped make our Lisa See event truly special."

Mexican Repatriation bill advances

SACRAMENTO – A bill authored Assemblymember Cristina Garcia (D-Bell Gardens) but the brainchild of a classroom of strong willed elementary school children, has passed the State Assembly with strong bi-partisan support.

Assembly Bill 146 encourages that the "Mexican Repatriation," the unconstitutional deportation in the 1930's of over 1 million U.S. citizens and lawful residents of Mexican descent in California, be included in student history textbooks and studies.

The idea for the bill was submitted as part of Garcia's Annual "There Ought to Be a Law" contest by a 5th grade class at Bell Gardens Elementary School. In September she visited the class to talk about a trip she had taken to Mexico and Central America to learn about the plight of unaccompanied migrant children coming to America.

Garcia said that she was "pleasantly surprised" by the students who had prepared skits, poems, power points and a book about the Repatriation Act.

"The students spoke about how difficult it was for them to find historic information on the Repatriation, but as they dug and learned more, the impacts of this tragic period affected them on a very personal level." she said. "I encouraged them to dream big and submit their idea to my districtwide contest and today their bill has passed the State Assembly."

National concert tour makes stop at Lynwood High

LYNWOOD - About 1,500 students jumped to rhythms of up-and-coming artists and participated in developing their own talents in arts and music for two hours in the campus Quad on May 19 as Lynwood High hosted the High School Nation Tour.

The event not only brought musical acts to the campus but also exposed the students to a world of music, arts and media through interactive areas including the Guitar Center Music Zone, Tilly's Clothing Zone, Sony Media Zone and the Tulip Art Zone. In these zones, students could play music on top instruments, silk screen T-shirts and create designs for shoes.

Along with the show, High School Nation donated more than $10,000 in music and arts equipment to the school and gave away more than $5,000 in prizes to the students, including Gibson guitars, backpacks and art supplies.

The crowd swayed and danced to the artists including, Jacob Latimore, Leroy Sanchez and The New Officials were also available for students to meet and take photos with the artist.

The show also gave journalism students a taste of covering a large music festival as they were allowed to go back stage with press passes, shoot photographs and do interviews. Drama and music pupils were welcomed to a question-and-answer session with the performers before the festival.

selected as one of the campuses that High School Nation visited this year," said Lynwood Unified Superintendent Paul Gothold. "These young artists inspire our students to achieve their goals. They know that if they put in the time and hard work, they too can become successful. High School Nation's donation of musical and arts equipment will help us continue to encourage our young artists."

Five students also had the opportunity to get on stage and sing in front of their peers in a contest.

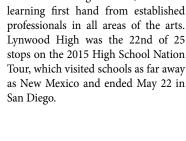

"It was so great to share my talents as part of the multi-state tour. Booths with my classmates," said Ervin Garcia, 17, who won a wireless microphone by singing a few bars of Etta James' "At Last." "It's going to be karaoke every Friday night at my house."

For 10 years, High School Nation has worked with thousands of public high schools and middle schools across the country. It began with a focus on providing free lunchtime concerts for students, and has since grown "It was such an honor to be into a facilitator for talented student artists. High School Nation provides

SHARED STORIES: THE TIES THAT BIND

Fingerprints

Dora Silvers is a real New York kinda' girl. In this essay on fingerprints, her humor is dry, and some of her stories would fit right into a Seinfeld episode on TV. Shared Stories is a weekly column featuring articles by participants in a writing class at the Norwalk Senior Center. Bonnie Mansell is the instructor for this free class offered through the Cerritos College Adult Education Program. Curated by Carol Kearns

By Dora Silvers

When my twins were born, their footprints and thumbprints were on their birth certificates. Also my thumbprints.

When my brother Ben was in New York, a man was running down the street and gave him a heavy typewriter. Then the man hopped on a waiting bus and disappeared. A policeman tapped my brother on the shoulder.

He said to Ben, "I have to take you in, you have stolen property." Ben looked around, and there was a patrol of her daddy dressed in throughout our apartment.

For over 15 months I'd kiss his picture good night. As our little daughter began to talk and walk, she'd go over to her daddy's photo and say, "Dada, nite, nite" or "Dada bye, bye."

Sometimes she'd look to me to hand her the photograph

not unusual for her to chatter about her daddy, but then she said something I had never heard her say before. She said,

In 1963 my husband, Vic,

Ben told him, "Someone gave it to me and then got on the bus."

The officer insisted, "We have to take you in, and that is it."

When they got to the police station, Ben asked if he could call his father. My dad said he would call cousin Max who was a lawyer in New York.

After Ben was fingerprinted, Max showed up. Max asked to talk to the owner of the shop where the typewriter was stolen. The owner described the thief as short and with gray hair. Ben was tall and had dark hair. So Ben was released and cousin Max treated him to a dinner at a fancy restaurant.

My daughter Nancy had just been hired at a bank in the New Accounts department. After work, Nancy changed into her leotards and sweatshirt She was going to the gym to work out.

As she was leaving, her boss called her over and said, "Nancy, you have to go to the Sheriff's station and get fingerprinted. That's a requirement at this bank." So Nancy drove to the Sheriff's station where they took her

A week later, as she was again leaving work in her gym outfit, her boss said to her, "Nancy, your fingerprints did not take. You have to go back and have them done over."

So she drove to the Sheriff's station again, but this time there was a bus and men were lined up. She told the officer,

"I have to get fingerprinted."

He said to her, "Get in line!" She was so embarrassed at having to stand in line with men who were wearing handcuffs.

When she got to the front of the line, the deputy said, "Are you back again?" All of the men laughed and said, "Atta girl!"

When she told this to her friends who were waiting for her at the gym, they all thought it was funny and laughed. Nancy was embarrassed.

When I got hired as a secretary at McDonald Douglas, my boss told me, "Next week an agent from the FBI will come and interview you for your top security clearance because you will be handling government documents." Then he handed me several forms to fill out. The first form was AKA, which means "Also Known As," so I put in my maiden name.

The government agent was real cute, with blond hair and the nicest blue eyes. I gave him my forms and he said, "I will have to fingerprint you." First he took my thumbprints, and then my thumbprint and my index finger and my middle finger.

I looked into those blue, blue eyes and asked him, "Why?"

He said to me, "In case you open your boss's top drawer." I did not know if he was kidding, but a week later I did get my security clearance. And I never did open my boss's top drawer.

POETRY MATTERS

Digging

Between my finger and my thumb The squat pen rests; snug as a gun.

Under my window, a clean rasping sound When the spade sinks into gravelly ground: My father, digging. I look down

Till his straining rump among the flowerbeds Bends low, comes up twenty years away Stooping in rhythm through potato drills Where he was digging.

The coarse boot nestled on the lug, the shaft Against the inside knee was levered firmly. He rooted out tall tops, buried the bright edge deep To scatter new potatoes that we picked, Loving their cool hardness in our hands.

By God, the old man could handle a spade. Just like his old man.

My grandfather cut more turf in a day Than any other man on Toner's bog. Once I carried him milk in a bottle Corked sloppily with paper. He straightened up To drink it, then fell to right away Nicking and slicing neatly, heaving sods Over his shoulder, going down and down For the good turf. Digging.

The cold smell of potato mould, the squelch and

Of soggy peat, the curt cuts of an edge Through living roots awaken in my head. But I've no spade to follow men like them.

Between my finger and my thumb The squat pen rests. I'll dig with it.

By Seamus Heaney

June is Dad's Month. In this poem devoted to the natural world and a sense of regional and family tradition, the poet explores his father's life. Seeing how to adapt his father's example and form his own identity, he creates a poem chock full of rhyme and other sound effects. Haney was the fourth Irish writer to win the Nobel Prize for Literature. Poetry Matters is curated by Lorine Parks.

"Dada home, Dada home!"

On a beautiful crisp diapers on the clothesline daddy she had only known in eyes, I repeated her refrain, when I heard my little girl, photographs.

It took my breath away to I quickly turned around to see our daughter swept up in find that she was announcing her daddy's arms. I rushed her daddy's homecoming with to join them in our hearts' morning I was outside hanging her arms stretched out to the embrace; with tears in my "Dada home, Dada home."
