DOWNEY - Facing mandatory water restrictions from the state of California, the Downey City Council this week adopted sweeping regulations limiting water usage at homes and businesses.

The regulations are in line with Gov. Jerry Brown's executive order from April 1, which established mandatory water use restrictions throughout the state.

Brown also ordered a 25 percent reduction in potable water use statewide; Downey is expected to reduce its water use by 20 percent from June 1 through February 2016, and faces fines up to $10,000 per day for noncompliance.

The City Council's actions amends this week: the municipal code to emphasize water conservation and prohibit water waste.

Developer building 117 townhomes on Gallatin Medical site

By Christian Brown Staff Writer

DOWNEY - After a green light from city officials last week, KB Home is expected to build more than 100 townhomes at the former Gallatin Medical Center site later this year.

The Los Angeles-based home builders and designers are calling the new contemporary complex Centerpointe. Based on plans submitted to the city, the development will feature 117 three-story townhouses that each come with a two-car garage.

Vacant for more than a decade, the 6.5-acre property at 10734 Paramount Blvd. includes three separate lots that lie in between 5th and 7th streets. The largest lot is 241,000 sq. ft. and once housed three medical buildings known as Gallatin Medical Center. The two smaller lots were previously used for surface parking.

Gallatin Medical Center was demolished in the early 2000s and health group PIH has maintained ownership of the lot ever since, but city officials said PIH has entered a sales agreement with KB Home, who will now acquire the property.

City officials could not say how much the property was being sold for. Once construction is complete,

This summer, leave school – and the earth – behind. Your neighborhood space and science place – the Columbia Memorial Space Center – will be hosting Space Camp throughout the month of July. Each week for 4 weeks, we will be offering a different camp experience. You can sign up to build robots, take on the role of an astronaut and/or explore a new planet. You can even go on unique field trips to places like JPL (the Jet Propulsion Laboratory) and talk to the scientists and engineers sending probes out into the solar system. It's Space Camp! How cool!?!

While all that may sound exciting, more than all of the building and exploring and doing we offer, what you really will be able to do is have fun meeting new people and sharing great times. Of all of the things you can do over the summer, Space Camp at the Space Center (it's not just a coincidence it's named that!) is the only place in town where you'll be able to combine out-of-this-world activities with a totally social atmosphere made just for you to leave the school year behind while still keeping a little

Yes, adults, we offer effective learning experiences designed to stimulate creative and critical thinking. Yes, adults, social interactions like those at camp improve academic performance. Yes, adults, studies show that camp programs like Summer Space Camp at the Space Center help bridge the gap between school years that occurs during the summer. Yes, adults, camp participants will be able to take control of their learning experiences, follow their own interests and have a good time while doing it! Yes, we offer all of this and more. Young people, we know that you've had a long year at school. Summer should be about having some down time with friends while doing something fun and totally unique, like being a part of Space Camp. We're here for you. Join us.

To make room for you and give you more choices, the Columbia Memorial Space Center has doubled its camp this summer! Each week in July, we offer one session for 4th-5th graders and one session for 6th-8th graders. Every week-long session, no matter the age range, include hands-on activities and a field trip to a one-of-a-kind destination outside of the Space Center.

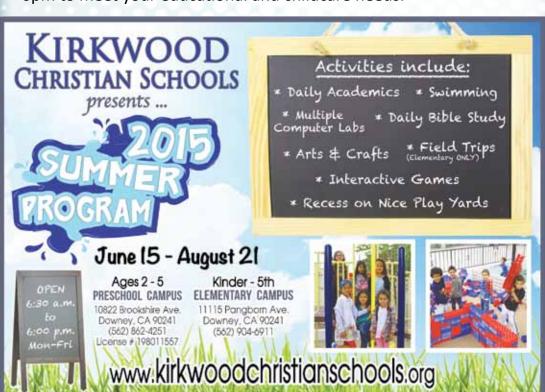

By the way, while writing this, we realized it may be more effective to tell you about the exciting things you'll be able to do this summer than to write an article talking about the academic benefits of camp experiences like ours. We'd be happy to talk about that, if you like. We have a lot of stats and learning info to share. Please, call the Space Center if you have questions and someone will answer them - maybe even me. We're at 562-231-1205 and you can sign up online at www.columbiaspacescience.org We look forward to you being a part of Space Camp. See you this summer!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Veterans vs. immigrants

I saw a bumper sticker years ago which read "Why doesn't the government make getting welfare as hard to get as a building permit?"

I'd like to see a new one: "Why doesn't the government treat veterans as well as they do illegal immigrants?"

Thank you to all who have served and their families. And to families who have lost a soldier, I know thanks will never be enough, but thank you.

Convention space

Dear Editor:

The city is going to build another shopping area. I do not think that the city should be building another shopping area.

As a city we have many empty lots or buildings that should be filled first. An idea that I had for the lot that used to be the Downey Studios should be a convention center. That would bring in more people to the city than some shopping area.

The convention center can hold many things like competitions for dances of cheerleading; there are also things like comic book conventions or even for anime. These could have the city's name in it like Long Beach Comic Con.

All of this is different than what the city has but it most likely will bring more revenue to the city than stores.

Theatre condition

I was at the Downey Theatre last month for my granddaughter's dance competition. I have lived my whole life in Downey and I want us to have Downey pride. The city needs to make the lobby and bathrooms look beautiful like it should.

The bathroom faucets are practically rusted and I was embarrassed for my studio to see that because I was bragging about our theater and how much fun we have had there over the years.

Steps to beat the economic doldrums

More than seven years after the Great Recession began in 2007, many Americans are still struggling to put their economic lives back together.

Factors such as low wages, high interest rates on credit cards and a mediocre job market continue to make a lot of families feel like the recovery passed them by, says Dr. Ravi Batra, an economist and author of the new book "End Unemployment Now: How to Eliminate Joblessness, Debt and Poverty Despite Congress." (www.ravibatra.com)

It doesn't have to be this way, he says.

"The main cause of our troubles is monopoly capitalism, which is a Hillary Clinton. system dominated by giant companies that charge high prices, pay low wages and extract huge productivity from employees," says Batra, an economics professor at Southern Methodist University.

"As a result, supply rises faster than demand and generates layoffs. So the solution lies in breaking up the behemoths and returning to free markets, where many firms engage in price and quality competition.'

That's easier said than done, though, because of the political considerations, Batra says. He surmises that any attempt to move legislation through Congress would meet with failure. But there are other options. Batra says any U.S. president could take actions to improve the situation without going through Congress. Among

- The president could use a 1987 law and direct the FDIC to create what is known as a "bridge bank" that would compete with large banks. This could cut interest rates on credit cards by two-thirds. Banks still charge the same high interests rates they did in 2007, even though, thanks to the Federal Reserve, their borrowing costs are close to zero, he says.
- The Commodity Futures Trading Commission can use its emergency power to raise the margin requirement for buying oil futures from the current 6 percent to 50 percent. That would cause the oil price to fall to its free-market level of $20 per barrel. During past minor recessions, Batra says, such prices usually fell to less than $15 and helped speed up recoveries.
- The Treasury should issue five-year bonds to needy retirees, offering a fixed interest rate of 3.5 percent. "This would not raise long-term borrowing costs for the government," Batra says, "but it would offer a lifeline to pensioners nearly devastated by Federal Reserve policies."
- Ideally, the minimum wage should gradually be raised and linked to inflation and national productivity, Batra says. He doubts Congress would agree to that. But as an alternative, the president should continue to ask federal contractors to raise their minimum wage on government-supported work. In competitive markets, the real wage rises in proportion to efficiency gains, so linking the minimum wage to national productivity would generate a free-enterprise system in which, over time, the living standard rises for all,

Dr. Ravi Batra, a professor of economics at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, is the author of five international bestsellers. His latest book is "End Unemployment Now: How to Eliminate Joblessness, Debt and Poverty Despite Congress"

Why would anyone run for office?

By Lee H. Hamilton

I spend a fair amount of time talking to students and other young people about Congress and politics in general, and I've noticed something. It used to be that I'd regularly get asked how one runs for office. Nowadays, I

This is a young generation that is famously leery of politics. Every year, the Harvard Institute of Politics surveys young Americans about their attitudes. In their most recent survey, only 21 percent of respondents considered themselves politically engaged. Last year, only a third counted running for office "an honorable thing to do" - compared 70 percent who considered community service honorable.

A lot of young people are repelled by politics; they've lost faith in the system just as many other Americans have. And I fully understand that elected office is not for everybody. You can make wonderful contributions to our communities and to our society as a whole without holding office. But look. If you don't have people who are willing to run for office, you don't have a representative democracy. As the leading edge of the

Your guide to the 2016 GOP candidates

By Donald Kaul

The Republicans have a big problem. Their presidential primary contest is beginning to resemble the New York marathon - hordes of contestants as far as the eye can see.

How is a voter expected to choose among them, particularly since virtually all say pretty much the same

To name a few examples, the entire gang of 15 or more politicians wants to cut taxes, roll back the Affordable Care Act, ban abortion, crack down on undocumented immigration, keep gun laws weak, and do nothing about global warming.

What's wrong with staying 'middle class'?

By Marjorie E. Wood

Presidential candidates are getting creative when it comes to describing the middle class, The New York Times

Why? Because the middle class in America is shrinking. As a result, the term no longer connotes aspirational, feel-good emotions.

Long associated with American Dream, the phrase now conjures up anxiety about the future and a lifestyle that's become unattainable for millions of Americans. Pollsters concluded that using the term on the 2016 campaign trail would hurt more than help.

This isn't as surprising as you'd think. Some 95 percent of income and wealth gains have gone to the top 1 percent over the past few years. And during the same period, average income for everyone else — including the middle class — actually dropped.

Meanwhile, tax cuts for the wealthy have reduced the quality of education, infrastructure, and other

People like economist Guy Standing call this growing class of temporary and contract workers the "precariat," underscoring the common feeling that at any given time they could fall out of the middle class. Early fireworks

Dear Editor:

On May 29, the firework season already started. Last year it didn't end until Aug. 15.

It amazes me that there are still so many people who just don't care about causing heart and nerve trauma to both people as well as to a great many pets. It also amazes me that the city officials refuse to effectively deputize the people to get photographic evidence, and if it is sufficient to fine someone, then whoever took the photograph gets to keep half of the fine as a gift for serving the community.

Otherwise, we might as well admit that this situation is never going to get resolved because the city council and the police are at a complete loss as to coming up with an effective way to deal with this situation.

As of May 29, from 9 p.m. to midnight you cannot sleep soundly because Downey of all the intermittent fireworks by so many cowardly morons. This creating of a literal war zone atmosphere is truly unfair for all the returned combat veterans who cannot recover from their war traumas. This firework noise is truly traumatizing to the heart and nerves, and it is one of those senseless, despicable, uncaring, and horrifying human behaviors that makes you truly embarrassed to be a human being.

It is insulting to many of us that so many have not yet evolved beyond the level of being an intentional imbecile. What is that song? "God bless America." I ask, why? So we can be more selfish, noisy, and more pathetically uncaring? When so many still behave with such uncaring depravity we don't deserve to be blessed. Furthermore, why are we so selfish that we can't ask God to bless the entire world?

Why don't we do something novel and bless ourselves and our communities, by being more refined, quiet and caring people? Danny Wright

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

I grew up drinking whole milk at every meal. I like it, and although as an adult I gradually transitioned to lowfat and then to nonfat milk, I continue to drink milk everyday.

For 30 to 50 million Americans, however, digesting a glass of milk can bring on the distressing symptoms of lactose intolerance. This is a condition in which the body does not adequately process lactose, which is the type of sugar found in milk and other dairy products. When lactose moves through the large intestine without being properly digested, it causes symptoms that can include gas, abdominal pain, and bloating. There are various degrees of lactose intolerance, ranging from an inability to digest any dairy products to being able to eat or drink small amounts of certain types.

The problem starts in the small intestine. In order for lactose, a large sugar molecule, to be absorbed into the bloodstream, it must first be split into two smaller sugars: glucose and galactose. It is the glucose and galactose that are then absorbed by the cells lining the small intestine. How does lactose split into glucose and galactose? This is the work of the lactase enzyme. Too little lactase results in poor lactose absorption.

Several factors make us more prone to lactose intolerance:

·Getting older. Symptoms most typically develop during the teen or

·Being of Asian, African, Hispanic, or American Indian descent.

·Having family members who are lactose intolerant.

·Premature birth, which may have led to a poorly developed small

·Having diseases affecting the small intestine, such as bacterial overgrowth, celiac disease and Crohn's

·Undergoing certain cancer treatments, including radiation or intestinal chemotherapy.

Classic symptoms of lactose lactase deficiency through a DNA test. intolerance begin 30 minutes to two hours after consuming dairy products. They range from mild to severe, depending on how much lactase the body is able to produce. Lactose that is not broken down, processed, and absorbed in the small intestine moves ahead into the colon.

The good news is that even once the lactose enters the colon, there are still native bacteria that contain lactase, and they are able to split the lactose and use the resulting glucose and galactose. Unfortunately, these particular bacteria then release hydrogen gas as a byproduct. Some of the gas is absorbed from the colon and into the bloodstream, and is then expelled by the lungs in the breath. Most of the hydrogen is used in the colon by other bacteria. Still, a small proportion of the excess hydrogen gas is responsible for increased flatulence (passing gas). Also, not all of the lactose that reaches the colon is split and used by colonic bacteria. This remaining lactose draws water into the colon through osmosis. This leads to loose stools and diarrhea, possible bloating, abdominal pain or cramping, and gurgling or rumbling

How can lactose intolerance be easily diagnosed? A milk challenge is a simple diagnostic tool. Fast overnight, then drink a glass of milk in the morning. Do not eat or drink anything else for three to five hours. If you are lactose intolerant, the milk should produce symptoms. Or, you may choose to completely avoid products that contain lactose for a few weeks, and observe whether the well as in supplements. symptoms disappear. Your doctor can confirm a diagnosis through several other tests:

·Lactose intolerance test - the patient drinks a high lactose liquid, and two hours later takes a blood test to measure blood levels of glucose. If glucose levels do not rise significantly, abdominal cancer, it means that the body isn't properly complications from digesting and absorbing the lactose.

·Hydrogen breath test - again, the There are three different types of patient drinks a liquid with a high level

·Stool acidity test for infants and Lactase levels can sometimes be children - a stool sample will detect by the fermentation of undigested

·DNA - It is now possible to detect

Scientists haven't yet figured out a way to boost the body's production of the lactase enzyme. The simplest treatment, obviously, is to avoid foods that contain lactose. Here are some less drastic suggestions:

·Consume smaller servings of

·Drink milk with other foods. This slows digestion and may lessen

·Experiment with dairy products not all have the same amount of lactose. Hard cheeses such as Swiss or cheddar, cottage cheese, and butter are lower in lactose. Cultured milk products, such as yogurt, are better tolerated because the bacteria used in the culture process naturally produce

·Look for lactose-reduced or lactose-free products.

·Take lactase enzyme tablets or drops when consuming dairy.

·Take probiotics. These are living organisms that help maintain a healthy digestive system, and may help the body to digest lactose.

If milk products are removed from the diet, how do we consume enough calcium, a mineral necessary for healthy bones? Try broccoli, spinach, and other deep green leafy vegetables, canned salmon, soy and rice milk, oranges, pinto beans, and rhubarb. Consume calcium-fortified products, such as breads and juices. Note that milk is also a common source of vitamin D, so look for vitamin D in eggs, liver and yogurt, as

Track and field is the last sport of the 2014-15 school year. Schools will begin their fall classes on August 26th and the first football and volleyball games are scheduled for Sept. 29.

The 2015 installment of the 48th annual 605 Prep All-Star football game was held at Cerritos College last Friday night. The East squad defeated the West squad 10-7 in a defensive contest.

Downey's Jack Williams was the coach for the west and Buena Park's Anthony White was the coach for the east.

Jack Williams led S.G.V.L. champion Downey to the C.I.F. Southeast Division championship game where the Vikings fell to Crescenta Valley 21-14. Anthony White led Buena Park to a second place finish (11-2, 4-1) in the Freeway League and to a semifinal Southwest Division playoffs where the Coyotes lost to eventual champion Trabuco Hills 38-7.

The 605 All-Star game is a showcase for local standout football players to compete against each other one last time and for local college coaches to have one last look at this year's senior class. It is a fun game to play in and be a part of.

Downey had six players participate in this year's game. Receiver and defensive back Jason Thomas, running back Justin Huff, wide receiver and linebacker Eddie Preciado, defensive end Chris

ROTA, Spain - A 2003 Brethern Christian High School graduate and Bellflower, California native is serving on USS Donald Cook, living and working at a Navy base in Rota, Petty Officer 3rd Class Steven Austin is a fire controlman on the Rota, Spain-based ship. Rota is located near the Strait of Gibraltar, the entryway into the Mediterranean Sea from the Atlantic Ocean.

"I like being able to fix stuff, getting involved, and getting my hands dirty," said Austin. "For me, it's better than sitting at a desk."

USS Donald Cook is 505 feet long, almost the length of two football fields. The ship is 66 feet wide and weighs more than 9,200 tons. Twin gas-turbine engines can push the ship through the water at more than 30 mph.

ship's company, jobs are highly varied which keeps the ship mission ready — this includes everything from washing dishes and preparing meals to handling weaponry and maintaining the propulsion system.

Austin also said he is proud of the work he is doing as part of the Cook's crew, protecting America on

"Not only is it a steady paycheck and great job, but I get to visit interesting places and meet people from different countries," Austin explained. "I get to see different cultures and immerse myself in other places that I wouldn't normally see if I was just in the States.".

Assigned to U.S. 6th Fleet, USS Donald Cook sailors are on watch throughout the European region and are important assets supporting President Obama's European Phased Adaptive Approach to enhance the security of that area of the world from ballistic missile threats originating in the Middle East.

In addition to USS Donald Cook, two other BMD capable ships are forward-deployed in Rota: USS Porter and USS Ross. A fourth, USS Carney, will arrive in the fall. Having four destroyers based in Rota gives the U.S. 6th Fleet flexibility to send these ships to a variety of locations for a range of missions, while at the same time providing a large umbrella of protection for European allies.

"Our Navy presence has to be where it matters and we have to be there when it matters. I am so proud and amazed by the knowledge Cook sailors display and the work they do With approximately 30 officers every day," said Cmdr. Charles E. and 250 enlisted comprising the Hampton, the ship's commanding officer. "Their professionalism, motivation and commitment to the Navy are genuinely inspiring."

In addition to missile defense, the forward-deployed, BMD-capable destroyers conduct a myriad of tasks that include the full range of maritime security operations, bilateral and multilateral training exercises, and NATO operations and deployments.

Destroyers are one of the most versatile ships. Fast, maneuverable, and technically advanced, they provide the required warfighting capabilities and operational flexibility to execute multi-mission evolutions such as surface warfare, anti-submarine warfare and antiair warfare. USS Donald Cook can operate independently or as part of carrier strike groups, surface action groups, amphibious ready groups, underway replenishment

As a member of one of the U.S. Navy's most versatile combat ships, Austin and other USS Donald Cook sailors know they are part of a forward-deployed naval forces team that is heavily relied upon to help protect and defend America on the world's oceans.

Downey's 2014-15 budget 'stable' but future not certain

DOWNEY - With the local economy continuing to improve and unemployment at its lowest rate since 2008, city leaders are cautiously optimistic about Downey's current financial footing.

It's the next 3-4 years that has officials concerned.

City council members and department heads spent the better portion of Wednesday afternoon poring over a proposed $162 million spending plan for Downey's 2015-16 fiscal year.

The budget is mostly similar to Downey's current spending plan, with 65 percent of expenditures allocated to the police and fire departments.

"If there's one word we can come away to describe the budget, it's 'stable," said Mayor Pro Tem Alex Saab.

The police department plans to maintain its current level of 111 sworn police officers next year, said Police Chief Carl Charles. But he cautioned that more officers will be needed in the not-too-distant future, particularly when the Promenade shopping center opens next year.

The Promenade, a 77-acre retail and commercial center currently under construction, is expected to increase demand in police and fire services.

Charles said he would like to add five police officers within the next five years, at a total estimated cost of about $1 million per year.

Another challenge is employee pension costs, which continue to climb due to changes in discount rates and mortality assumptions.

In fact, the $2.5 million in annual sales tax revenue the Promenade is projected to generate is wiped out by rising pension costs, said city manager

Other cities in similar situations have raised their sales taxes and created development impact fees on new construction, officials said.

'We're at a pivotal point in our city where soon we will have to make some very important policy decisions," said Councilman Fernando Vasquez.

The city's reserves stand at about $32 million and council members said they were reluctant to tap into it except for one-time costs that would bolster the city's assets.

Council members plan to use approximately $2.4 million from reserves protect the United States and those to finance specific capital and infrastructure projects, including a new air who cannot protect themselves," said conditioning system and bathroom renovations at the Downey Civic Theatre.

That will bring Downey's reserves down to about $29.6 million. For comparison, Downey had about $70 million socked away in 2006 before the

The City Council is expected to vote on the proposed budget on June 23.

SHARED STORIES: THE TIES THAT BIND

My Amazing Sister

Along with her parents and seven siblings, Maria Zeemen spent three years of her childhood in a Japanese prisoner of war camp in Indonesia during World War II. Not only did her entire family survive, her younger sister Letty overcame the effects of polio contracted during that time. Shared Stories is a weekly column featuring articles from a writing class at the Norwalk Senior Center. Bonnie Mansell is the instructor for this free class offered through the Cerritos College Adult Education Program. Curated by Carol Kearns

By Maria Zeeman

I recently went to visit my sisters, Letty and Nel, in the Netherlands. My youngest sister Trixi, who lives in Montreal, also came with me. I have a sister, Clara, who lives in Vancouver, and my oldest sister, Frances, lives in Toronto. At the ripe old age of 94 she is unable to travel.

It took me 10 hours without stops to land at the Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam. It wasn't an easy flight, but I forgot all about my discomfort as soon as I law Letty. She has always been an inspiration to me. She is only two years younger than I am, so I always felt close to her.

My family is Dutch, and we lived in Indonesia before World

Summer is the time for fun outside with family and friends. However, it's also when many accidents occur around the home. Keep your family, friends and neighbors safe with these tips.

Around the pool

Swimming pools and spas may be fun to play and lounge in; however, children and pets can get hurt in and around them. Follow these safety tips to ensure everyone's safety around the pool*

- · Never leave children unattended.
- Keep children away from pool drains, pipes and openings.
- Make sure everyone knows how to swim
- · Learn CPR and first aid-they can save lives.
- · Don't swim if the pool has flat, broken or missing drain covers. Drains can suction hair and body parts, causing serious injury to children and adults.
- · Install a fence at least four tall around the perimeter of the pool.
- · Make sure pool and spa covers work.
- · Use self-closing and self-latching gates.

Around the home and yard

Enjoy your time around your home and yard this summer and make sure it's free of hazards with these tips

- · Supervise children whenever they're outside, and keep them inside when you're mowing or trimming.
- · Always grill in an open, well-ventilated area, and keep children and pets at least three feet away from the grill.
- Put away hoses when not in use to prevent falls.
- Remove dead trees before they become hazard.
- Keep paint, fertilizers and hazardous chemicals out of reach of children and animals.
- Put away lawn and garden tools and machinery when you're finished with them.
- · Maintain lawn mowers, trimmers and other eqipment, and use them as instructed to prevent injuries.
- Put ladders and other home maintenance items away when not in use.
