The Vikings have also relied on their defense to win games, sacking opposing quarterbacks 16 times this year for a total of 103 yards

The President fell for a Saudi prince's charming spell

By Jamie Stiehm

The grand romance with the crown prince is over, with blood spilled at the Saudi Arabian consulate in Turkey, where the three world religions and East and West meet.

Send the thank-you note to novice Jared Kushner and his fatherin-law, President Donald Trump. Winging foreign policy, Kushner fell under the spell of Mohammed bin Salman, the Saudi prince who is anything but a reformer, by his own admission. Now a countryman's murder points to the prince.

Not even murderous Macbeth, the Scottish villain in Shakespeare's greatest tragedy, would do what was done to the self-exiled Saudi journalist, Jamal Khashoggi.

Here we stand at a turning point for the nation, the wide world watching, facing the question: What do we stand for?

No, really, tell me. Is it something besides being the richest arms dealer on earth? Surely Mike Pompeo, secretary of state, will sort it out on his emergency trip to see the Saudi rulers.

Riyadh, the capital, was the first foreign visit the president paid. Trump felt at home with the gold, glitz and servitude. Symbolically, that choice radiated a radical shift in America's strong stance on human rights. It sent a sour message to our best friends and allies, Britain, France and Germany: a new gang is in town.

U.S. intelligence tells us the Saudi journalist walked in and never left that squat building in beautiful Istanbul. A critic of the cruel desert kingdom, Khashoggi was (apparently) brutally murdered by Saudi agents at that very spot. Reportedly, they tried to wash the blood before letting investigators inside.

After days of denial, the kingdom has finally spoken: Death came during an interrogation. That confirms what Turkish authorities said, that the journalist was likely tortured. (Turkish strongman, President Tayyip Erdogan, is the good guy in the gruesome plot.)

Recall Trump declared "war" on the press his first full day in office, brazenly defying the First Amendment. So why should he really care about a foreign journalist's devastating death?

The White House Correspondents' Association hasn't issued a

Khashoggi, just shy of 60, served the Saudi monarchy much of his life. A U.S. resident, he contributed columns to The Washington Post and had reason to feel good as a free man. He kissed his bride-to-be goodbye — "my darling" — and walked into the consulate alone in broad daylight, seeking a document for his wedding.

The writer once belonged to the shady Islamist Muslim Brotherhood, but became more progressive.

Well did he know King Salman and the crown prince — who goes by a Western nickname, MBS — hated his dissent from the repressive regime. But would they come for him in Istanbul, a thriving world

"This never would have happened without MBS's approval. Never, never, never," a former senior diplomat told The Washington Post. The crown prince, 33, with a tight grip on power, campaigns hard to impress upon Western leaders and investors that he is modernizing the medieval oil kingdom, literally the last place on earth for a woman to live, covered and silenced.

The prince let women to drive, but incarcerated several women's rights advocates. He detained untold numbers, "been ruthless in asserting power" and ordered a "wave of executions," since becoming heir to King Salman, according to The Post.

The brash crown prince once spoke sharply to President Obama, hectoring him — not often done with a head of state. True to form, Obama was too polite to walk out. Did the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks come up? Passing strange that 15 of the 19 hijackers were Saudis.

Kushner was bamboozled by the prince's aura. So were a host of rich powerful men who flocked to the first "Future Investment conference last October in Riyadh. A second flashy showcase ("Davos in the desert") is scheduled his month, though the list of dropouts includes Wall Street titan Jamie Dimon and Uber chief Dara Khosrowshahi.

I'm sorry to say Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin is on the fence about going. He'll decide Friday. But wars are raging — one of which Saudi Arabia is waging on Yemen. Then there's always Iran. So there are billions in arms to sell at that bazaar.

That may trump everything.

The need for criminal justice reform

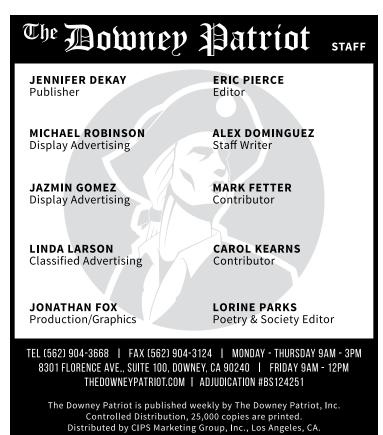

By Jacob Sullum

Kanye West's literal embrace of Donald Trump was all over the news last week. The president's rhetorical embrace of criminal justice reform got considerably less attention, but may prove more

In an interview with Fox News on the morning of his meeting with the rap impresario, Trump signaled that he was ready to go beyond "back-end" reform, which focuses on rehabilitation of inmates, and support "front end" reform, which focuses on reducing sentences and sending fewer people to prison. The key to understanding Trump's remarks is Alice Marie Johnson, whose sentence the president commuted in June at the behest of West's wife, Kim Kardashian.

Johnson, a first-time offender who received a life sentence in 1996 for participating in a Memphis cocaine trafficking organization, has described herself as "a telephone mule, passing messages between tremendous job with reform," he said. the distributors and sellers." While serving nearly 22 years in federal prison, she became a grandmother and great-grandmother, an ordained minister and a mentor to other inmates.

Although it took the intercession of a fellow reality TV star for Trump to free Johnson, he clearly was impressed by her story. More important, he recognizes that Johnson, whom he calls "the most incredible woman," is not unique in receiving an absurdly disproportionate sentence for a nonviolent crime.

"You have many people like Mrs. Johnson," Trump said on Fox News. "There are people in jail for really long terms."

Notably, Trump did not say the solution is more commutations, although those would certainly be welcome. "There has to be a reform, because it's very unfair right now," he said. "It's very unfair to African-Americans. It's very unfair to everybody.'

Trump had high praise for criminal justice reforms in Texas and Georgia, which in recent years have seen falling crime rates even

These comments, which may seem surprising from a man who has consciously cultivated a tough-on-crime image, reflect the influence of people Trump respects, people like his son-in-law, Jared Kushner, and former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, a supporter of the conservative reform organization Right on Crime. And yes, people like Kanye West and Kim Kardashian.

That influence could be crucial in the ongoing debate about federal sentencing reform. Last May, the House overwhelmingly approved the FIRST STEP Act, a collection of modest prison reforms aimed at awareness on this very important issue. reducing recidivism and promoting reintegration. The bill is on hold in the Senate, where Judiciary Committee Chairman Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) is demanding that it include sentencing reforms as well.

The latest proposal would incorporate into the FIRST STEP Act four elements of Grassley's Sentencing Reform and Corrections Act. The amendments would widen the "safety valve" that lets some drug offenders escape mandatory minimum sentences, narrow the criteria for mandatory minimums that apply to repeat drug offenders, clarify that escalating sentences for drug offenders who have guns require prior convictions, and retroactively apply the shorter crack cocaine sentences that Congress approved in 2010.

If Trump backs the changes Grassley wants, an amended bill could be approved by the lame-duck Congress after the election. "I believe the president was sincere," said Jason Pye, the vice president of legislative affairs at FreedomWorks, which supports sentencing reform. "I was skeptical when the White House began dabbling in this more than year ago. But the White House has been fully engaged Grassley himself was an ardent opponent of sentencing reform. In Trump's case, the evolutionary pressure may come from people he disdains as well as people he admires.

Attorney General Jeff Sessions is no fan of sentencing reform, which may count in its favor, as far as Trump is concerned. If Sessions does not get on board with "prison reform," Trump said on Fox News, "then he gets overruled by me, because I make the decision."

I believe her

Dear Editor:

Mark Lopez's letter ("Presumption of Innocence," 10/11/18) bemoaned the fact that Brett Kavanaugh's confirmation process was unfairly based on mere assumptions. That his reputation was besmirched on mere anecdotal evidence and not "direct facts."

Christine Blasey Ford had testified that Kavanaugh's friend, Mark Judge, was present in the room when the alleged incident occurred. She backed this testimony up by taking, and passing, a lie detector test. It is a "direct fact" that she did this.

Mark Judge, on the other hand, declined to do so.

Was it necessary that he do so? Of course not. After all, he is a man, and we all know how truthful men are, wink, wink, nudge, nudge.

Campaign contributions

Dear Editor:

On November 6, registered voters in the fourth district, which takes in the northeast part of Downey, will have the chance to elect a new council person to replace Fernando Vasquez, who is termed out after eight years in office.

Downey Realtor and attorney Carrie Uva, and emergency preparedness manager Claudia Frometa, are vying for the office.

Both candidates have filed FPPC Form 460 with the Downey City Clerk reporting campaign contributions each received for the period of July 1 through Sept. 30.

This letter addresses the donations to Ms. Frometa's campaign, which are primarily from business interests.

They include Best Buy Tire Center ($2,000), 4 Tires on Line ($2,000), Meghrig Stradley ($2,000), Champion Dodge ($2,000), CalMet Services ($2,000), Paramount Resource Recycling ($1,000), Marcar Real Estate ($1,000), RMI International ($650), Joseph's Bar and Grill ($500) and Hernandez Carpet Buyers ($500).

Development standards

Dear Editor:

Thank you, Lawrence Christon, for your article - it is exactly the feeling of Downey residents. ("Buried Treasures," 9/6/18)

The KB project on Paramount Boulevard is shameful. It could have been family dwelling for our prime city. It looks like tiny matchboxes stacked up the front door on the sidewalk.

Who approved this? Parking is already a huge problem through the city and residential areas.

Marsha Moode gave 100% to our city and the Downey Civic Light Opera. We miss this – it must stop. Change is needed.

We need to support our police, fire department, businesses and the council needs to wake up or leave with KB developments. Jean Brown

Mental health

Thank you Alex Dominguez for such an enlightening article on anxiety and depression.("What It's Like to Have Anxiety and Depression," 10/11/18) It was touching as well as educational.

He shared such specific and personal symptoms that he has dealt with which, in my opinion, was courageous and selfless.

In addition to the hotlines he mentioned for those in crisis, I want to recommend NAMI, National Alliance for Mental Illness. They have chapters in most communities and offer classes for family and friends that want to understand mental illness and better support a loved one.

Thank you again for using your talent as a journalist to promote

I would like to have some kind of an island installed on Studebaker Road between Cecilia Street and all the way to Florence Avenue.

Lately there has been a lot of speeding and during the night on weekends there's been young guys doing donuts in the middle

I am just asking for safety in our streets and community. I hope the city takes action.

People do change their minds about these issues: Not long ago, Long live community newspapers

Dear Editor:

Why is the local newspaper so vital and valuable to the city and the county?

Coverage and communication: governance of city council meetings and decisions; county and city commission meetings, school events and highlights of sports; business openings and closings, birth announcements and obituaries; crime and court news; civic clubs and charity news; festivals and fairs; church news; and a plethora of local stories about local residents. And feature columns. And crosswords and comic strips.

Most newspapers have main departments devoted to making the newspaper: production/printing, circulation, and advertising. I'm sending a thank-you to the employees behind the scene: typesetters, press operators, web designers, proofreaders, factcheckers, advertising managers, sales, newspaper carriers, and others on the payroll.

Supporting your local newspaper matters more than you may think. Send a thank-you to the publisher, editor, reporters, and columnists. Write a Letter to the Editor on a local issue that matters to you. Purchase a subscription and show your community

But why not show appreciation to your local newspaper people more often than once a year. Send an email or text whenever a local story resonates with you.

"The newspaper is a greater treasure to the people than uncounted millions of gold," declared Henry Ward Beecher.

Happy National Newspapers Week!

It's officially Spirit Week in Downey

Downey Doings

By Lorine Parks Society Columnist

DOWNEY - "Whoever wants it the most will win." That's Tom Houts, Principal of Downey High School speaking.

"I haven't seen Warren play, so I can't say anything about them. But whoever wins," he said, "it won't be an upset."

Is this a grudge match, or a love fest? It's Spirit Week, the days preceding the Big Game, the intra-city rivalry, Downey versus Warren. But instead of dividing the city, the game has always

The teams and the schools show such respect for each other, that it's the talk of the country. And it's the Rotary Club of Downey's pleasure each year to invite representatives of both schools to have luncheon with us and share the excitement.

Not to say that there aren't club. Bill Kirkwood sported a deep crimson sport coat (that's the Downey Vikings, crimson and white), and brought with him a guest who actually played for Downey High in 1960. And Downey beat Warren that year.

Walking farther into the room toward the buffet table, once might encounter a table all in navy blue (that's navy and gold for the Warren Bears), and someone in maroon, like Larry Garces, might be told to sit on the other side of the room.

There's even contention on the staff of the Hubbub. Dan Fox has his own Warren letter jacket, and this reporter wears her son Jeff's from his sophomore year in 1975 at Downey High.

"It's a huge, huge deal," said Dr. John Garcia, "to be Superintendent of the School District where I grew up, and where I played for my school in the game."

"I love the excitement, the energy of Spirit Week," Dr. John went on. "It's going to be a fantastic game. There are only so many seats in the stadium, so get there about 4:30 in the afternoon to get in line.'

"During the game you see the animated feelings within the line of people standing outside, watching through the fence."

> "I can recall my last game I played exactly," he said. "We scored two touchdowns but lost by two points, a two-point after touchdown conversion."

"This will be my 30th game," Principal Houts said. "I started at Warren. And now I'm at Downey. It's something else, the way the game is sold out. And the band music is really great to listen to."

The coach of the Vikings, Jack Williams, then came to the podium and introduced members of the varsity team, and assistant

"We're really excited," said Laura Rivas, Principal at Warren, as she pumped her fists. "We've been excited all week. Go Bears!"

She then introduced the football coach, Raul Lara, who called on his varsity players to look forward overcoming adversity,"

"Last week, something happened," said Dr. John, "that has never happened in the history of high school As Dr. John remembered it, football in Southern Čalifornia. They postponed the football matches."

> Cause? It was lightning strikes, this reporter recalls. Football teams play in rain and mud and cold or heat. But lightning? When Mother Nature puts on her own show, there are rules in place. Shutting down to protect the players on the field and the spectators in the stands is one of them. No appeals.

"Downey was to play Lynwood," said Dr. John. "St. John Bosco versus Mater Dei. All postponed. But now we have the game, and it has its own electricity."

Showing the healthy balance in the School District between sports and curriculum and social responsibility, each school next introduced their All Student Body officers. The Viking leaders, coincidentally all girls and dressed in crimson tee shirts with their office printed on the sleeve in white, introduced themselves, then stood by as the cheerleaders performed.

Wearing short white tunics piped in crimson with a crimson megaphone emblem on the chest and big crimson bows in their hair, the award-winning squad exhorted the team to "Go Vikings

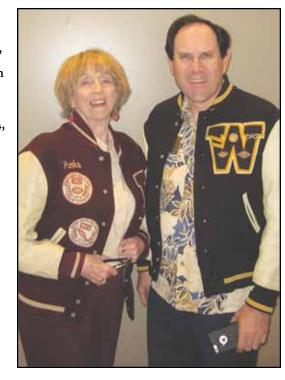

Warren All Student Body officers were up next, and each gave a short speech, showing the poise that marks the effective public speaker.

"School spirit means so many things," their president said.

Warren showed a short film, "Spirit Week," which showed the different activities that take place each day at school to build up momentum during the week. Backwards Day, Costume, and

Wearing the same white tunics, with a capital W logo on the chest in navy and gold, their smiles were enough to almost sway the Downey supporters.

Whittier school district switches to by-trustee area elections

WHITTIER - The Whittier Union High School District will launch a series of public meetings to gather community input as it begins the process of shifting from at-large elections to by-trustee area elections after the Board of Trustees unanimously approved the transition at its Oct. 9 board meeting.

The shift means that instead of residents voting for any board candidate on the ballot within the Whittier Union District boundaries, residents will vote for a single candidate residing in their newly drawn trustee-area, usually one-fifth of the entire district. The change will go into effect November 2020.

"Every decision our Board of Trustees makes has always been based on what is best for students and their families," Superintendent Martin Plourde said. "We are proud of the fact that no matter who sits on this board, student successes and achievements remain the priority. Whittier Union is committed to making this a transparent, inclusive process in which all members of our community will be engaged and each voice will be valued and heard."

The district discussed districting criteria during public hearings Tuesday and will again Tuesday, Oct. 30. Issues to be discussed could include creating compact, contiguous districts, preserving existing political communities and equal population sizes, and ensuring each high school attendance areas are represented by multiple board

A professional demographer will draw possible trustee area maps based on those criteria and present the maps during a public hearing at the regular board meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 13. Whittier Union community members will be able to provide input and testimony regarding the proposed trustee areas.

The District will subsequently host a series of open houses/ workshops and offer community presentations for residents to review and provide input regarding maps and corresponding election plans and learn about the process for selecting a map. Those dates have yet to be determined.

Revised and additional maps will be reviewed during a regular board meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 11. The board anticipates narrowing the number of maps for review on Tuesday, Jan. 15.

Once the public has provided input, the school board expects to select a final trustee map on Tuesday, Feb. 12. The approved map would then be presented to the Los Angeles County Committee on School District Organization, likely the following day.

An interview with clarinetist David van Maele

Downey Doings

By Lorine Parks Society Columnist

DOWNEY - "In the second movement, which Oscar dedicated to the memory of my son, the music is slow and soft, and the clarinet carries the melody. I think of my son," said virtuoso clarinet soloist David van Maele, "and I am with him again. It makes me happy.'

Van Maele is speaking of Oscar Navarro's Third Clarinet Concerto for E Flat Clarinet, which the Downey Symphony Orchestra will perform on Saturday night. Van Maele, who is Belgian, and Navarro, whose home is Spain, traveled here to Downey for the North American première.

How did van Maele come to commission the Spaniard to write this piece?

with an incurable wasting disease and he was in a special school because he needed the support. The school organized a benefit to raise money, and I was chosen, or volunteered, to perform on the

for the E flat clarinet, and I thought, 'Wow, what a beautiful piece. And who is the composer? I'd like to play it.'

"So I wrote to Oscar in Spain," van Maele continued, three weeks before the concert. I invited him to come and hear a full orchestra perform his work for the first time in Belgium. It's only a two and a half or threehour drive from Spain to Belgium, so he came, and heard his Second Clarinet Concerto performed by the Royal Band of the Belgian for an E flat clarinet. What is the Guides. So we became friends."

"And after that," van Maele continued, "I entered a competition and played that higher," said van Maele, "and "I had a son who was six years concerto, and I won the first old," he said. "Mattiece was born prize. And then we were on you to write something for me. Something special.''

"So Oscar wrote this Third Concerto," van Maele continued, and he told me, 'I am dedicating the second movement to your son.' The first movement has cadenzas and it grows faster and louder. Then it slows down, and in the second movement "I had just seen a new piece the music goes very high. The orchestra takes the melody from the clarinet heavenward, very clear. That's the second movement, and it makes it very special that he dedicated it to my son. Every time I play it I see him

> Does that make van Maele sad? "Oh no, I am happy to be with him once more."

"The third movement? Very quick, very complex," he added.

These concertos are written difference between that and a B flat one?

GOVERNMENT IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER

Este informe contiene información potable. Tradúzcalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

City of Downey, Public Water System Has Detected Levels of Coliform Bacteria Above the Drinking Water Standard

The City of Downey Public Works, Utilities Division routinely monitors for coliform bacteria. During the month of September 2018, our water system did not meet the requirements of the Total Coliform Rule. Although this is not an emergency, as our customers, you have a right to know what you should do, what happened, and what we did to correct this situation.

We are required to monitor our water system for total coliform on a regular basis. Total coliform monitoring is used as an indicator of whether or not your drinking water meets drinking water standards. We collect a minimum of 100 monthly required samples to test for the presence of coliform bacteria in our water distribution system. In September 2018, 15.2 percent of those samples showed the presence of total coliform bacteria. The standard is that no more than 5.0 percent of samples may do so. During the dates mentioned above, coliform bacteria was present in samples collected from 7918 Dalen Street, Rundell Street between 7433 and 7466 Rundell Street, Nada Street between 7300 and 7320 Nada Street, Horley Avenue between 11526 and 11548 Horley Avenue, Cole Street between 7907 and 7930 Cole Street, Horton Avenue between 10617 and 10711 Horton Avenue, 17746 Glynn Avenue, and 9703 above, coliform bacteria was present Avenue, 12746 Glynn Avenue, and 9703

Parrot Avenue What should I do?

You do not need to boil your water or take other corrective actions.

• This is not an emergency. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. Total coliform bacteria are generally not harmful themselves. Coliforms are bacteria which are naturally present in the environment and are used as an indicator that other; potentially-harmful, bacteria may be present. Coliforms were found in more samples than allowed and this was a warning of potential problems.

• Usually, coliforms are a sign that there could be a problem with the system's treatment or distribution system (pipes). Whenever we detect coliform bacteria in any sample, we do follow-up testing to see if other bacteria of greater concern, such as fecal coliform or E. coli, are present. We did not find any of these bacteria in our subsequent testing, and further testing shows that this problem has been resolved. been resolved.

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from U.S. EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1(800) 426-4791.

 If you have other health issues concerning the consumption of this water, you may wish to consult your doctor.

Downey's Dia de los Muertos festival expands altar displays

DOWNEY - The "Avenue of Altars" is a newly-added attraction to this year's Dia de los Muertos Art Festival, taking place Sunday, Oct. 28, in and around the Downey Theatre.

The festival is now in its sixth year.

For the first time, the festival is presenting an exhibit of altars, organized and curated by Downey Art Coalition vice president Carolina Estrada Del-Toro, who also organizes the festival's fine arts exhibit in the theater lobby.

In the past, large lobby crowds impeded full viewing of the altars, so the presentation has been relocated to an outdoor area.

Most of the altars to be displayed are created by Downey residents but some are from neighboring cities.

Del Toro, who was born and raised in Nyarit, Mexico, said that the altars, or ofrendas, are the most promnent feature in a Dia de los Muertos celebration.

"Altars are created to show the souls of the dead that they haven't been forgotten," she said.

The festival is from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. with free admission. In addition to the altars, the festival includes three stages of live entertainment, an urban art alley, library exhibits, arts and crafts, demonstrations, and food trucks.

When buying a house, these 'deal-breakers' may actually be deal makers features that they absolutely won't put up with in any property they purchase.

But guess what? Your deal breakers might actually be deal makers in disguise.

Waiting for that mythical perfect home to emerge can be a losing battle. Meanwhile, bargains are out there—they just need a buyer who's savvy enough to see past certain seemingly glaring flaws and realize that they're fixable problems. Here are some examples:

An outdated kitchen

Whether it's tacky Formica countertops or clunky overhead cabinets, it's easy to turn up your nose at a retro kitchen. And, we get it—a kitchen remodel can cost big bucks! But before you walk away, figure out if it's salvageable; for example, maybe it's a great layout that just needs some cosmetic work, says Christina Souretis, real estate adviser with Engel and Völkers in Duxbury, MA.

"Since a bad kitchen is probably priced into the house, I consider it a benefit to the buyer, because you'll be paying less, and then you can pick out the exact kitchen you want," she says.

And this theory holds for almost any cosmetic horrorwhether it's wood paneling, tattered shag carpet, or foil wallpaper—provided the house has good bones and is otherwise a winner.

Asbestos

Wow, the very idea of

But there is one exception: If care of by encapsulation rather store. than costly removal, says home inspector Welmoed Sisson, with Inspections by Bob in Frederick,

> The goal is not to let the dust particles become airborne, so she recommends covering the flooring with a resilient material with as few seams as possible, such as sheet vinyl, which can cost as little as $1 a square foot.

Unpaid HOA or condo fees

If the last sellers didn't pay all their HOA or condo fees, they get passed on to a new buyer. Only who would want to take on who wants a total steal, that's

"I'd scored a great deal on my first investment property, simply because the previous owner owed several years' worth of dues," says Shayan Jalali, a real estate agent with Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices Warren Residential in Boston. "No one else bothered to do the research to figure out how much was owed, and the amount ended up being negligible, compared to the

Cracked walls

Those ominous cracks in walls don't necessarily mean the house is going to fall over on itself, says Christian Nossum, a real estate agent with Wilson Realty in Seattle, WA.

"Many buyers think about foundation issues when they see wall cracks, but that's not necessarily the case," he says. While drywall is now a common building material, prior to the late 1950s, interior walls were typically built with lath and plaster. Because of gravity and someone else's debts? Someone the normal house settling that occurs over the years, plaster can often crack, which can look very scary—but is often not a major problem.

An old roof

An old roof can be a deal breaker, since they're so pricey to replace (check out how much a new roof costs). But sometimes the condition and type of roof means that the roof has dipped into the fountain of youth, contends Luis Dominguez with will cover it.

Termites

Hearing that a property has termites makes a would-be buyer picture the home being eaten alive by insects, ready to blow over in a stiff breeze, says Dominguez.

But in some climates, like the humid environs of Florida, they are pretty typical, since prevailing conditions provide a great breeding ground for them.

Instead of fleeing, Dominguez
