White following the Board of Education meeting on Monday. "I believe wholeheartedly in the amazing programs Warren offers and know that our hardworking staff care deeply about the success of each and every one of our students. I feel blessed to be able to continue serving our Warren students, families and staff in this new

Cari White Would residents use scooters? One councilman wants to find out

Councilman Alex Saab has proposed a trial period for rentable scooters in Downtown Downey.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY - After implementing a bike rental program earlier this year, the city may be considering bringing in scooters as well.

Councilman Alex Saab brought up the idea of a scooter share program during his personal comments at Tuesday's meeting, asking city staff to look into the possibility of a trial run for such a program and bring it back to council.

Saab says that he had ridden rentable scooters recently in Downtown Los Angeles and Long Beach, and was curious as to how a similar program would work in Downey.

Specifically, Saab suggested a 60 to 90-day pilot program in the downtown area.

"I just think that we've tried to be a little more on the cutting edge...," said Saab after the meeting. "There's opportunities for [the scooter company] to control the speed, even the location where they go."

"If the residents respond to it, then maybe we can grant a permit, and if it doesn't work it

Councilman Sean Ashton raised a concern during his comments, however, saying that it seemed to him that many of the bikes from the Zagster program implemented in January had disappeared, and that the rental rack in downtown is often seen empty.

After the meeting, Ashton said that it was a possibility that only the downtown station was empty, but he added that the bikes didn't seem "well used" in his personal opinion.

"Part of the problem is the way it's set up," said Ashton. "When you look at the scooter programs that are in other cities. the reason why they're successful is because they don't have to be docked somewhere; you can just get on and then get off and leave it there. That works for the people, but not necessarily for the cities because now you've got scooters all over the place, and that was a concern that we had when we were looking at this program."

"Here we have a bike that's in the downtown area, at the space center, and I think over at the Green Line station; you have to take them to one of those places and that's restrictive if you're not going to the space center, downtown, or the Green

Saab likewise said that the bike program may not have been as successful as they had originally hoped. While the city is "not giving up on the bikes," he suggested that bikes are often times outshined once scooters are introduced.

"I've been doing the research, and it seems like in many communities when scooters come in, people tend to use those and replace the bikes, said Saab. "[The bike program] hasn't been as successful as we wanted. The scooter obviously is a little less intensive on people, so I think people may embrace it more. I may be wrong, but I think it's worth it."

Marco Rubio: A strong bipartisan path to tackle gun violence

BY SEN. MARCO RUBIO

After a string of mass shootings this summer, Americans are demanding a response to curtail the violence. If we are looking to deliver a solution that reduces bloodshed and respects the rights of responsible gun owners, the only realistic action must be bipartisan.

This is why the recent focus on red-flag proposals from our Senate colleagues and the president is welcome. The most effective step Congress can take right now to prevent tragedies like those in Parkland, Fla.; Newtown, Conn.; and Dayton, Ohio, is to enact red-flag laws, which give law enforcement the ability to restrict gun access for unstable, potentially violent people, without infringing on other Americans' rights.

That's why, on the first day of this Congress, I reintroduced bipartisan legislation with Senators Susan Collins, Republican of Maine; Jack Reed, Democrat of Rhode Island; and Angus King, independent of Maine.

We can see the consensus around red-flag legislation developing in real time. I commend Senator Lindsey Graham, Republican of South Carolina, and Senator Richard Blumenthal, Democrat of Connecticut, who have publicly voiced support for enacting a law that would provide financial incentives to states to adopt red-flag laws. Our bill does exactly that.

It's no secret that you need a bipartisan coalition to pass legislation in the Senate, and we've already done the legwork. We can build off our proposal in order to put a law in place that can actually stop the next attack.

Red-flag laws empower law enforcement or family members to use the judicial system to keep guns out of the hands of dangerous individuals. In Florida, when a concerned family member contacts the police about a person determined to be a threat to himself or others, the police can petition a judge to have his guns taken away for two weeks. After an additional hearing, the risk protection order can be extended for up to a year.

The laws do not infringe on the Second Amendment rights of law-abiding gun owners. In order for a state to be eligible for funding under our proposal, it would be required to enact strong due process protections and include a felony penalty for false reporting.

Red and blue states alike across the country are enacting red-

California versus the gig economy

BY MIRIAM PAWEL

Labor leaders cheered in the balcony and lawmakers embraced on the floor of the California Senate on Tuesday as it passed a landmark measure that defines employees, a move that could increase wages and benefits for hundreds of thousands of struggling workers.

But the bill is as much a starting point as an endgame: It will drive a national debate over how to reshape labor laws fashioned in the industrial era of the 1930s to fit a 21st-century service and knowledge

With the measure, which Gov. Gavin Newsom says he will sign, California will lead in a shift that will likely redefine the roles of governments, unions and worker organizations. Just as federal labor laws were promulgated to help the country recover from the Depression, the imperative to extend basic guarantees like a minimum wage stems from the staggering income inequality in California, the state with the highest poverty rate in the country.

The new paradigms will need to fit not the relatively stable industrial work force of the last century but a gig economy in which workers are increasingly likely to hold multiple jobs or report to no workplace at all. California lawmakers took a major step in constructing the foundation of such a model with the new measure, which presumes workers are employees, entitled to all concomitant protections and benefits, unless they meet strict criteria as truly independent contractors.

Although the ride-share businesses Uber and Lyft were center stage in the run-up to the legislature's votes, they were in fact not the impetus for the new law.

The bill was actually incited by a 14-year-old case in which Los Angeles delivery drivers sued their employer for lost wages after they were abruptly reclassified as independent contractors. Last year, the state's highest court issued a broad ruling that sought to clarify what had long been a murky legal standard. The decision said workers are presumed to be employees unless a business can meet the "ABC test" - an independent contractor must be free from the control of the hiring entity, perform work outside the normal scope of the hiring entity and be an independent established practitioner of the trade performed. With exceptions for specific professions, the new measure adopts that definition.

The focus on the gig economy has obscured the more widespread impact of the new law in traditional businesses where workers — like the delivery drivers who sued in 2005 — have been misclassified for years. Hundreds of thousands of construction workers, janitors, truckers, nail salon workers and others now paid as independent contractors will be entitled to earn minimum wage and overtime, receive unemployment insurance and family leave, and have bargaining rights. The state hopes the measure will garner it much of the estimated $7 billion a year businesses have evaded paying in payroll taxes; unions hope to recruit new members. Their success will be both an indication of their strength and a key to effective enforcement.

Accurate data is scarce, but a recent estimate suggests about 8.5 percent of people in the California work force in 2016 relied on independent contract work as their primary income. Of those, maybe one in 12 works for app-based companies, while an unknown number supplement their income with part-time gig work. Though they employ about 220,000 drivers in California, the ubiquitous presence of Uber and Lyft and the dissonance between their founders' extreme wealth and their drivers' poverty have come to symbolize the crisis of income inequality.

The "new economy, the gig economy, the innovation economy" is "feudalism all over again," said the Assembly speaker, Anthony Rendon, a Los Angeles Democrat.

Until now, the ride-share drivers have fallen into a labor netherworld, classified as independent contractors by the National Labor Relations Board and thus not entitled to protected union activity. Organizing efforts have bogged down in a welter of court rulings and confusion over federal laws and pre-emptions. A Seattle law to allow ride-share drivers to organize a labor union was struck down by a federal-court decision that only states could confer such a right on independent contractors.

That appears to create an opportunity for California to establish a mechanism for drivers to unionize under the auspices of a state labor board, which could be extended to oversee union activity for other gig workers excluded from federal jurisdiction. Organizations of rideshare drivers, encouraged by their success in helping lobby for the California bill, will take on that goal next.

Ride-share companies will continue to fight the California measure, which they maintain would cripple their business model. Barclays has estimated that to comply next year would cost Uber $507 million and Lyft $290 million. Uber, which insists that its drivers don't qualify as employees, has said it will force them to make claims for employment status individually. Uber, Lyft and the food delivery service DoorDash have together committed $90 million to financing a 2020 ballot initiative to overturn the law, a quest that would face dubious prospects.

The companies' offers to give drivers greater benefits and some input have all been rejected as insufficient, but Governor Newsom has said that, even after signing the bill, he will continue to attempt to forge some compromise that might create a third category of worker — not an employee, but an independent worker with certain enforceable rights and benefits.

All of the scenarios suggest rethinking the role of the state in protecting workers' rights and economic security, accelerating a shift that has been going on for years. As union membership declined, states — in particular California — have been the mechanism to insure benefits including higher minimum wages, access to affordable Dear Editor: health care and portable retirement plans.

Uber, which has reported huge losses and laid off hundreds of workers in recent weeks, has warned that the California measure will have broad ramifications. A coalition of labor groups in New York has already proposed legislation modeled on the bill, and Gov. Andrew Cuomo has indicated support, saying he "does not like to lag California in anything."

In the end, in whatever form Uber survives the changed landscape, it may have served as a vehicle to usher in new models of labor laws for the 21st century.

Rives Mansion

Dear Editor:

The last time I looked, the U.S. was based in the capitalism economic system based on the private ownership of the means of production and their operation for profit.

Hence, I was shocked to read in the Downey Patriot that nonelected bureaucrats of the Planning Commission objected to some of the actions of the owners of the Rives Mansion in the interest of preserving its historic value.

I believe that commissioners Dominguez et al. should put their money where their mouth is and, if they really believe that they know better than the owners what the future of the Rives Mansion should be, they should buy it and donate it to the city so that the mansion can be preserved in its historic beauty without having to compromise Dear Editor: in such mundane things as operating at a profit.

gratitude of all citizens of Downey for such magnificent action.

Jorge Montero Downey

Dear Editor:

The owners of the Rives Mansion purchased the property 2 ½ years ago as a residential sale and wanted to use it as an event center but were told that it could not be used for that purpose. The project changed into converting the mansion into nine office spaces and adding 24 parking spaces. The owners have already spent considerable amounts of time and money to find a way to make the property into something they can use. The owners sated they have been furnishing security protection on the property to keep the structures safe.

Commissioners asked the owners what they would do to maintain the historical history of the Rives Mansion by maybe giving tours of the property by docents. The owners stated that office spaces would be private and they were sure the tenants would not want to be interrupted during the day.

The historical value of this mansion should be an important part of the sale of this property and how the buildings can be used. The subject of a juice bar or coffee shop came up with the location being on Paramount, which would obscure some view of the mansion when driving by. The building is 1,200 sq. ft. but only 400 sq ft. would be used for selling the drinks. We were told that the placement of this cafe was the only spot on the property were it can be built due to underground cables, wires, etc.

Downey's nearly 137-year history has only a certain number of privileged buildings - one of the city's most prominent and enduring structures is the Rives Mansion. Built in 1911, it is currently on the National Register of the U.S. Department of the Interior's list of historic landmarks.

The quality of Downey is judged by many interests and caring for its historical sites is one of them. Is placing a storefront juice cafe in front of the Rives Mansion in keeping with a historical site? I think

For years Downey has tried to sell the mansion to private investors and expected them to maintain the historical importance to the city. This property should be owned by the city and used by shared service clubs who would maintain the values of the history of Downey.

flag laws, and a recent study showed these laws may be playing a role in preventing mass shootings. As of last month, state judges had signed off on over 2,400 risk protection orders in Florida since March 2018, undoubtedly pre-empting violence.

Far too often, we learn after a tragedy that the perpetrator displayed concerning and often repeated signs of deeply troubling behavior, including clear statements indicating their intent to cause harm to others. In the case of the Parkland shooting suspect, the police received at least 45 calls about him, and a woman close to him even communicated to the F.B.I. that she feared he would become a school shooter, listing specific examples of disturbing conduct including holding a gun to the head of family members.

Despite these troubling indicators, the suspect was not prevented from owning or obtaining firearms because he had never been charged with a crime. Red-flag laws provide communities with a tool to prevent future tragedies.

I have spoken to families and other community members who have been hurt by senseless acts of violence. As we discuss ways to prevent attacks and keep our schools and communities safe, redflag laws are consistently mentioned.

Bipartisan consensus is growing that this type of law would be a part of the solution, and we have the blueprint needed to put them in place. It's time to act.

I want a tree

Dear Editor:

I am a homeowner in Downey and I want a tree.

I've been in contact with The Tree People since July 2018, asking for a tree. I have the right area for one, however, they now have told me they've finished the Downey area.

I've been on a waiting list, yet I'm still waiting.

Referring to last week's front-page story with Suzanne Dodd and her tree issue, I find it funny how one person who doesn't want a tree may get one anyway, while I've been here asking for one for over a

To bring this story to a happy ending, I have a suggestion: how about if Suzanne and I get together and plant her tree at my house? It's a win-win.

Tactical vehicles a necessity for police

While I respect Mr. Portillo's opinion, I strongly disagree. ("The Militarization of Downey PD," Letters to the Editor, 8/29/19)

Tactical vehicles like the BearCat are used by law enforcement agencies across the country. The argument against them falls short on fact. Referencing studies that pertain to "military grade weapons" and "crime statistics" do little more than raise fears and don't address the true story.

I can agree that tactical vehicles don't prevent crime. But when the excrement hits the oscillator, that's when their true value is seen.

More often than not, BearCats are being utilized to rescue those innocent men, women, and children in harm's way. As a retired deputy sheriff, I have seen tactical vehicles like these rescue numerous civilians, while protecting the brave men and women who risk their lives moving towards the gunfire.

The good citizens of Downey deserve a rapid police response that can address whatever issue is presented to them. Currently, they have to wait until the Sheriff's Department can get the same type of vehicle into the city.

Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness is granted to all, including law enforcement officers. This is just another tool to help them do their job safely.

Blame the Democrats

Isn't it comforting to know that the only important things in our Commissioner Dominguez et al will earn my respect and the country are global warming and plastic straws? No border problem, no crime problem, no problems with North Korea, Russia, China, > Apparently, the Democrats are not concerned with the bombs of North Korea and Iran. Well, they are concerned with our driving cars or flying airplanes - oops, it's ok for them to use air travel while campaigning and going home and back on weekends. No problem with major cities in the U.S. having people sleeping, defecating and urinating in streets with drug needles everywhere and rats running everywhere. No problem with the Democratic candidates.

> Well, they do clean this mess up now and then. They hose down the streets, the filth is washed into the ocean or drains that pollute the oceans. Protecting criminals in sanctuary states is now the accepted norm. In California, Gov. Newsom and some officials now have declared that bystanders do not have to help the police and heaven help the ICE agents, who are a federal agency, paid to protect our borders and check on released criminals, for the protection of > Congress has had years to make background checks on guns but has done little or nothing. Many in government want to take away the Second Amendment. Someone might even be bold or caring enough to take the college mess and stop the rip-off of the government money to keep tuition at a reasonable figure.

> Just a thought: Maybe we could finish building the border wall, but the Democrats don't want one. Those in Congress just voted themselves a raise. I do hope everyone realizes that they already, if they serve one term or more, will receive the same salary when they leave office (rip off) for the rest of their lives. What other job has this retirement? Let's just say none of them goes out of office poor.

> Has any Democrat considered that China, India and other countries pollute far worse than the U.S.? Do we have to do away with them?

> If Democrats are elected, we will have no more control of our lives (healthcare) and all our money will not cover the trillions they need to accomplish their stupid programs. Yes, one could say, "I'm fed up with government stupidity" or should I say with "government rip

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

Four out of every five prescriptions in the United States are filled with the generic version of a drug. The use of generics has saved over $700 billion during the past decade. However, generic drugs can deviate in strength and ingredients from the name brand medication. With certain conditions it is important to be quite precise. So, how and when should we use generics?

Consider a study out of the University of Cincinnati. Subjects with Parkinson's disease were given one of two injections. They were told that one drug was more expensive, and that the other was similar in effectiveness but was, due to manufacturing differences, much cheaper. Patients who received the "more expensive" drug showed 28% more improvement in motor skills. One might assume that one injection was with a name brand medication, and the second was a generic...but actually, both injections were placebos, made up of a saline (salt) solution! Our beliefs certainly do indeed affect our outcomes. Keep this study in mind as you read on.

In today's regulatory environment, developing an original medication is extremely complex and enormously expensive. A new drug undergoes research, trial and error, animal studies and human studies, FDA regulations, and marketing. After spending an average of some $2.6 billion on every new drug that actually makes it to market, a pharmaceutical company retains the exclusive right to it for approximately seven years. After that, the FDA allows one company to make a generic copy. That company will then have about six months of exclusivity before other companies are allowed to make their own generic versions.

It is clear that a major reason generic drugs are so much cheaper is that, although they do incur manufacturing and marketing costs, they bypass most of the expenses for research and development.

The FDA requires that copies of a drug result in blood concentrations that are within a specified range of the original drug. It is important to know that the FDA does not require that a generic drug contain the same inactiveing redients as the brand name product, as these inactive ingredients don't contribute to a drug's therapeutic action. These include binding materials, dyes, preservatives, and flavoring agents. A generic drug often looks nothing like the original product. These differences often explain why patients' reactions may vary among different generics as well as with the original drug.

Note that this applies to over-the-counter medications as well. For example, the binding materials, dyes, preservatives, and flavoring agents used in the CVS brand of acetaminophen are not the same as those used in the Walgreens version, and these generic versions of acetaminophen each vary from the original Tylenol.

The FDA permits certain specified variations (most typically around plus or minus 3-4%) of the active ingredients for most generic drugs. Usually, that small difference will not matter. However, our bodies are unique - we have different metabolisms, shorter or longer colons, different reactions to filler chemicals, etc. Some of us may be extra sensitive to small changes in blood concentrations of a drug. In addition, what matters may not be the dose of the medication, but how much of it the body can actually utilize. Some disease treatments have a narrow therapeutic index, where the blood concentrations must stay within a very limited range, and a small difference can have serious consequences. These medications include those used for seizures, heart arrhythmias, thyroid disorders, as well as blood thinners and lithium. It's possible that a name brand drug

We do live in the real world. Price differences between brand names and generics can be enormous. Many people avoid a generic due to a preconception that it is inferior to the name product. When you consider that University of Cincinnati study mentioned above, together with stringent FDA criteria, the generic is often worth considering. And, when one generic drug fails, it may well be a good idea to try a second generic before emptying the piggy bank and going straight to that name brand.

When switching from a name brand to a generic product, or from one generic product to another, always pay attention to how you feel, and inform your doctor of any changes immediately. Always feel free to have a discussion about how generic alternatives to name brand medications may relate to your own particular needs.

Community rallies to save youth football program

Donations pour in after thieves and a community effort was steal equipment from Bell Gardens children's football league.

BELL GARDENS -

Community partners presented $51,000 to save the Bell Gardens Youth Football and Cheer program last week after a major theft of their equipment occurred in early July.

The season's Opening Day celebration included check presentations and new equipment donations made possible by the Bell Gardens Police Department, the community, Assemblymember Cristina Garcia, the Los Angeles Chargers, the Los Angeles Rams, California Correctional Peace Officers Association and Supervisor Hilda Solis.

Bell Gardens Chief of Police, Scott Fairfield heard about the theft and jumpstarted a social media challenge with local business owners and raised nearly $7,000 to contribute to the team with donations still coming in. That campaign caught local media's attention galvanized.

"This is an incredible act of generosity coming from our entire community, it's inspiring," said Garcia (D-58). "Growing up and living in Bell Gardens, I know firsthand how hard our families work to provide basic needs for our kids and how heartbreaking this theft was to them. I'm fortunate to be in a position to act when I saw the need and everyone came together in support. We all know programs like this are exactly what communities like ours needs.

Garcia reached out to the Los Angeles Rams and the California Correctional Peace Officers Association (CCPOA) and asked them for donations. Garcia kicked in $5,000. Supervisor Solis donated another $5,000 and reached out to the Los Angeles Chargers.

The Chargers and Rams donated $15,000 and took the lead on collecting donations of used youth football equipment from the community. The CCPOA donated another $10,000.

The Bell Gardens Youth Football and Cheer Program launched a GoFundMe page where they raised nearly $8,000 in donations large and small from every corner of the working-class community.

"This is what community does," added Garcia. "Everyone who could help, helped. And these kids will know with certainty that the whole community, with as little or as much as they have, has their backs and wants to see them have these opportunities. That's the best thing we can give them.

Rose Hills hosting veterans resource fair Sunday

Now in its ninth year, the fair also includes a classic car show and food vendors. The public is invited.

WHITTIER - Today's service men and women encounter a series of needs, including employment and housing assistance, addressing health treatment options, and other support services.

To address these needs, veterans and their families are invited to participate in the ninth annual Veterans Resource Fair on Sunday, Sept. 15, from 2:30-5 p.m. at Rose Hills Memorial Park & Mortuary.

Downey puts up 41 points in win against Locke HS

By Mark Fetter Sportswriter

DOWNEY - The Downey High School football team improved to 1-2 last Friday night with a convincing 41-13 win against Locke of Los Angeles at Downey.

The Vikings wasted little time in getting on the scoreboard. Downey scored four touchdowns in the first quarter and led 28-0 as the quarter came to a close. Each team scored a touchdown and extra point in the second quarter and Downey took a 35-7 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Downey outscored Locke 6-0 in the third quarter and led 41-6 as the fourth quarter started. Locked added a late touchdown to cut the score to 41-13 but the damage had already been done. Downey won their first game of the season in dominating fashion.

Viking quarterback Pedro De anda completed 14/22 pass attempts for 219 yards and one touchdown. The Downey rushing attack was led by Antonio Ruiz's 13 carries for 137 yards and three touchdowns and Jayden Hollis' four carries for 64 yards and one touchdown.

The Viking receiving corps were led by Xander Orozco's five catches for 96 yards, Kevin Caldwell's three catches for 25 yards and Jayden Hollis' one catch for 34 yards and one touchdown. The Downey defense was led by Andrew Garcia's six solo and six assisted tackles, Mario Gonzalez's four solo and six assisted tackles, Justin Sanchez's five solo and two assisted tackles and Aiden Chapman's three solo and four assisted tackles.

Coach Williams, his staff and players have a bye this week before they host Alemany at Downey on September 20th. The upcoming bye week will serve as an excellent opportunity to rest sore players and get injured players healthy

WARREN FOOTBALL: The Warren High School football team improved to 2-0 last Friday night with a convincing 48-6 win at Huntington Park.

The Bears scored early and often as the Spartans struggled to move the ball on offense and struggled to keep the Bears out of the endzone on defense.

Warren raced out to a 21-0 lead in the first quarter and never looked back. The Bears scored another 27 points in the second quarter and led 48-0 going into the locker room at halftime. Neither team scored in the third quarter and Huntington Park scored a late touchdown in the fourth quarter to make it a 48-6 game.

The damage had already been done and Warren remained unbeaten. There were no offensive or defensive stats available at press time.

The Bears have scored an impressive 92 points in their first two games which gives them a two- game average of 46 points per game. Warren's defense has also been stingy giving up a total of 33 points in two games for an average of 16.5 points per game.

Interestingly, the Bears have only given up 14 points in the first half of their two games. Both of these touchdowns came in the second quarter of the St. Anthony's game two weeksago. These stats tell the reader many back-up players are being given opportunities to play in the second quarter and second half of games.

The Bears will play a 2-0 Culver City team later tonight at Warren. The Centaurs defeated West Torrance at West Torrance two weeks-ago 56-26 and defeated Peninsula at Peninsula 60-21 last week. Coach Pearson, his staff and players are all looking to improve to 3-0 this season after getting a win against Culver City tonight.

WARREN GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY: The Warren High School girls' cross country team will be traveling to New York this year to compete in the Manhattan Invitational on October 12

In recent years, the Lady Bears have traveled to Seattle, Washington; Houston, Texas; Palo Alto/San Francisco, California and Washington D.C.

The Warren High School coaching staff finds it important to expose their student-athletes to educational, cultural and social opportunities. This may help to explain why there are consistently over 75 girls in the cross-country program. Along with an inclusive approach, searching out developmental opportunities on and off the running course is of paramount important to Lady Bear success.

In an effort to off-set some of the expenses for this trip, the Warren High School ASB will be selling Community Discount Cards for $10 at the ASB Clerk's Office in the front office. This card is packed with local vendors and merchants committed to the students of Warren High School.

Some vendors on these cards include: Chick-Fil-A, BJ's Restaurant, Wing Stop, Subway, Burger City Grill, Marketplace Grill and Yogurtland to name a few. Thirty percent of the proceeds from this Community Discount Card will go towards the Warren High School Girls' Cross-Country Program.

Whether an individual would like to purchase an individual card or purchase multiple cards for friends, family or staff, no contribution is too small. Feel free to purchase or donate through the ASB Clerk's Office (562-869-7303 Ext. 5816) or send an e-mail to Coach Waldron at jwaldron@dusd.net.

Good luck to the Bears this cross-country season. Donating to the Lady Bear program is an investment in this community.

DOWNEY GIRLS

VOLLEYBALL: The Downey High School girls' volleyball team currently has an overall record of 5-3 and began San Gabriel Valley League play on Thursday against Gahr (score unavailable at press time).

Coach McCarthy, his staff and players are all looking forward to the start of league play and making another run at a league championship and C.I.F. Division 4 postseason playoff spot.

Downey Dolphins accepting new members

Students take field trip to UCI on first day of school

DOWNEY - On Friday, Aug. 9, St. Pius X-St. Matthias Academy (PMA)'s Class of 2023 began its first day of freshman year by boarding a bus destined for UC Irvine.

As PMA welcomed the largest freshman class since its rebranding in 2013, 125 new Warriors set off to visit what for many was their first time on a college campus.

Most high schools welcome freshman by filling the first day of school with campus orientations, pep rallies or picnics, all of which are good. However at St. Pius X-St. Matthias Academy, what makes the first day of school different from other schools is that minutes after freshmen are welcomed onto campus, they are all escorted right back off.

"Literally from day one, collegiate goals are made abundantly clear," the school said in a statement. "New students coming from surrounding communities in the greater Los Angeles area are left with no doubt in their minds as to the importance of education. Words are put into action and suddenly the possibilities do not seem unattainable, the dream is very much within reach."

"Visiting a college campus as a freshman plants the seed of opportunity within each student," said Vice Principal Moises Delgado. "A seed that when nurtured and cared for over four years at PMA grows, coming to fruition when that student steps across the stage at graduation and his or her next step is onto a college campus."

Coming to America

By Dulce Ruelos Contributor

"American Dream" was a term coined by writer and historian James Truslow Adams in his best-selling 1931 book, "Epic of America." He defined it as "that dream of a land in which life should be better and richer and fuller for everyone, with opportunity for each according to ability or achievement."

Investopedia's 2019 definition is that, "The American Dream is the belief that anyone, regardless of where they were born or what class they were born into, can attain their own version of success in a society where upward mobility is possible for everyone.

For a long time, the ultimate American dream for many in the Philippines has been to migrate to the United States. Most college graduates aim to come to the US primarily for economic reasons and also for professional training and advancement.

The exodus of young professionals has resulted in what was referred to as "brain drain," first coined by the spokesmen for the Royal Society of London to describe the outflow of scientists and technologists to the U.S. and Canada in the 1950's.

Back in the 60's, I had mixed feelings about the idea of migrating to the U.S. While it was attractive and enticing, I was not really keen on leaving my home country for greener

In my last year at the University of Sto. Tomas Medical School, my father told me that upon my graduation, he felt it would be time for him to retire after working as a school teacher for 40 years. He intended to take his retirement money in lump sum to buy me a jeep to use for home visits or for transportation of patients to the hospital when needed. I would serve as the first physician in my hometown.

Three months after our graduation, Ricky, my friend in college, left for the United States. On her first stopover in Honolulu, Hawaii, she sent me a doll with a letter describing the beauty of the place. She continued on to her first assignment at a hospital in Irving, Texas.

Based on her observation, she advised me that the U.S. is not a place for older professionals and that should I decide to migrate, I should do so while I was still young.

While the prospect of migrating to the U.S. was attractive and tempting, my decision was still to stay. Meanwhile, I got married to my longtime boyfriend, Vicman, and together had four children. With the size of our family, let alone both of us having secure jobs in the government, the appeal of migrating faded out.

Vicman was a lawver employed with the legal department of the Bureau of Customs. I worked at the Bureau of Health Services of the Ministry of Health. Ferdinand, Rino, Vernon, and Dee were all enrolled in Espiritu Santo, a reputable Catholic school in Manila. There really was not enough reason for us to pursue the American dream.

At an unexpected time there was a reorganization in my department and I felt the danger of losing my job. It turned out to be a blessing as I had received a post graduate scholarship leading to a Master's degree in Public Health. I took the golden opportunity to go to Hebrew University Hadassah Medical School in Jerusalem where all expenses were awarded by the government of Israel. In exchange for the one year scholarship grant, I would have to return to my position as medical nutritionist and serve for two more years.

Some of my relatives and my good friend, Ricky, who had already moved to Washington state by then, had invited me to visit the U.S. and Canada. Since I had completed my course, I could take advantage of being outside of my home country and accept their invitation.

It was perfect for me to consider visiting them while the Philippines was under martial law and strict requirements to be able to leave, would mean special permission, if coming directly from the Philippines. The situation presented itself for me to suitably visit Canada, New York, Washington, and California.

My visits and tour of these places were an eye opener for me. I had changed my mind about migrating. I filed my third preference visa application for professionals so that when approved, would allow to take my entire family with me as dependents. In preparation for us to migrate, I planned to go ahead and get settled first, with the rest of the family to follow.

Back in the Philippines, I was able to fulfill my contract as agreed. My decision to be an immigrant was final! Culture shock and adjustment to a new culture and lifestyle would be expected as part of the new immigrants' experience. However, when I am asked how I feel about having taken the chance to come to America as an immigrant, my resounding answer is always the same: "No

Mama's Little Helper

By Helen Hampton Contributor

I was born in a small town in northern Maine called Winslow. I was born at home because I wanted to be close to my mother.

The town had one Catholic church and one Protestant church. There was a grade school, high school, a small city hall and a library where I picked up my books each Saturday. Also, there was a Grange Hall where the farmers came to town to hold their monthly meetings.

One of the Grange meetings Mama took me to was a baby contest. I was 4 years old at the time and too big to be in the contest, but I wanted to see all the cute babies. They had prizes for different categories.

When the last prize was given out and the contest was over, I left my mother's side and walked with my dolly all the way down to the stage. I went up the steps and onto the stage.

The master of ceremonies said, "Well, what have we here?" I said, "My dolly didn't get a prize.

The man said, "Well, I guess we'll have to do something about that!" He gave me a beautiful hand painted baby rattle.

I was thrilled to death but I'm not so sure Mama was. I walked back to Mama and the audience went wild with applause and laughter.

One mile from Winslow, across a bridge over the Kennebec River, was a larger city called Waterville. It had three movie theaters, a large bank, post office, Woolworth's, J.C. Penney, and a fancy department store. Every Saturday I went to the movies for 25 cents and I would go to Woolworth's to buy 10 cents worth of candy corn.

During the summer months, I had several errands to do for Mama. First, I would go to the bank and stand on my tip-toes to reach the lady in the cage and give her the envelope Mama had given me. Then off to the post office for stamps, then to the drug store for the medicine Mama needed for the nursing home. Sometimes I had to wait for the drugs to be filled, so I would have a ham and cheese sandwich at the soda fountain. I should mention that I was only 10 years old at the time.

Must be 18 years of age prior to the start of class

Pass a Department of Justice and FBI background check

Approved for Veterans

Must have a High School Diploma or GED

Valid California Driver's License or ID card

have the lady in the department store help me select some dresses to take home in a big box for Mama's approval.

Mama told me never to accept a ride home from anyone. One day, a man stopped and asked if I would like a ride home. I said, "No, thank you!" It was one of the doctors that came to the nursing home. Mama explained to him what she had told me about a ride.

responsibility that I had as a child, as it helped me to cope with the trials and tribulations I endured in my later years. There are many good memories of the life I lived as "Mama's little helper." I wouldn't change a thing.

My First Born

By Sharon Benson Smith Contributor

I came close to miscarrying Steve when I was about four months along and had to be hospitalized for a week or more to keep from aborting. I was bedridden with my legs elevated the complete time during my hospital stay. I and all the worrisome family members and friends were relieved to learn that the hospital stay was successful, and the doctor who delivered me at home on Gleason Street eighteen years earlier delivered a healthy baby boy at the Beverly Hospital in Montebello.

I wanted to nurse him and set about to do just that. After he was home, however, is when we were to learn something different about this newborn. He would not nurse; I had to use a breast pump, and it was so painful. It was such a challenge that after a month or so of trying, and it just wasn't working, the doctor advised that I stop nursing, which I did gladly! That soon stopped the swelling and the "ouch."

When it came time to feed him solids, that was another fiasco. It took not only me, but my sisters, Phyllis and Donna, plus sister-in-law, Virginia, and grandma to play "airplane games" with him to get even a spoonful of food down him. We always got the "raspberries" from him. Yes, he spit most of it out at us. We soon learned that you never fed Steve without having a napkin handy (more like a dish towel)!

Now I'm taking him to the doctor because he isn't eating. The doctor/s (I took him to several thinking one of them could come up with a remedy). They all said, "If he were hungry, he would eat." To me and my family of healthy eaters this wasn't normal, so I would pursue another doctor and continued to get the same answer. I guess I finally gave in and trusted the doctors' words.

The next thing the little guy is doing is holding his breath. I don't mean just a mere bout of holding his breath for a second or two; I mean holding his breath until he was limp and blue in the face. It scared us all to death. It seemed like this only happened when we were visiting at granddad's and grandma's and my siblings who still lived at home. His dad and I started by taking him to the sink and sprinkling water in his face. When that didn't work, we started literally to passing him from one family member to another in the hope that one of us could make him breathe. When that didn't work, we all rushed outside, and, would you believe, we literally tossed him up in the air. I recall to this day the time that dad tossed him in the air and said, "Well, this time he's gone." OMG! Panic set in big time, but he finally took a breath and everyone there at the time breathed a sigh of relief.

and the audacity of this kid when in his teenage years he told me that he did all of that on purpose just to get attention! He didn't have to do anything for attention. He had all of us in the palms of his hands. Simply, and now looking back on the situation, he was just being a spoiled brat. I find it hard to believe that my first born just turned sixty-three.

He received a photography scholarship when he graduated from high school. Soon after that he was enrolled in university and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree. Furthering his education, he enrolled in law school and received his Juris Doctor Degree.

Steve worked long and hard hours to pay for his education. As a matter of fact, he and his wife paid off student loans well into several years of their

I want you to know that Steve now enjoys all his meals, be it his wife's gourmet cooking or their frequent fine dining.

Our Trip to Indonesia

By Maria Zeeman Contributor

My mom lived in Montreal, Canada. In 1993, she gave all eight of her children $5,000 and said, "You can do with it what you want, but I hope that you will use it to visit Indonesia. Visit the place you were born and where we were in the concentration camp under the Japanese regime.'

On May 8, 1994, she passed away. She was still alert until almost the end. I was there for my regular visit once a year. She was in the hospital. We played our favorite card game -- bridge -- and talked; she was still OK but she knew that the end was coming.

After 10 days, it was time for me to go back home. The very day I was home Trixie, (my sister that took care of my mom until she had to go in a hospital) called me and said to come back right away, mam's dying soon. I iust turned around and took the first plane I could get back.

When I came to her bed, she looked at me and said: "oh Mies you came back" I held her hand and my oldest sister Fransje, the other, the other six of her children around her. About 15 minutes later she died peacefully.

The following year in the summer, my brother Piet tried to arrange a trip to Indonesia. He and his wife Ina, my sisters Letty and her daughter Petra, Trixie and I decided to go. Piet and Ina's very close friends from Holland wanted to go too. So, we were with the eight of us. The three oldest sisters and my brother Jan didn't or couldn't make it.

Everybody left from Amsterdam airport, except me. I left from LAX. It was a five-hour flight to Hawaii and a 17-hour flight to Indonesia...way too long. I arrived in Medan, on the island of Sumatra. I came off the plane and saw nobody familiar. I found out their plane was a few hours late.

Well, what to do? I decided to leave my suitcase and big handbag in a locker and went out. I had to stretch my legs after that long flight. I walked until I saw some small eating places along the road and decided to try something. I was 14 years old when I left Indonesia for good. I soon found out that my knowledge of the Malayan language was very poor. Maybe it had changed since 1949.

I sat down. They put a small bunch of small bananas (sweet and delicious) before me and I ordered a beer. I was so thirsty. The beer was warm, but it was OK. Thank goodness that I changed some of my dollars for rupees (their currency). I was thinking of home in California, where they serve chips and

Then I walked back, the whole affair took about 2  $\frac{1}{2}$ hours. But nobody was there yet. Now they told me that the plane was not arriving until the next day. What to do? I was all alone, spoke very little of their language, saw no taxis or hotels; actually I only saw the airport and the (not paved) street I walked on.

But there was a lady with a board and it said "Maria Zeeman" written on it. Oh, thank you Lord, that must be for me. She told me that my brother had called to find me and bring me to a place where he had rooms rented. Soon I found out that there were no hotels or motels. Private people would rent rooms out. She spoke good English, told me what I had to know and that she would pick the rest of the family up tomorrow.

Meanwhile it was only 2 p.m. so I told her that I would like to take a bedja (man on a bicycle with a big chair in front for me to sit in) and go to the passer (market). It was an "open air" place with all kinds of food and merchandise. I asked him to wait for me. I walked through the market with all kinds of fruit, spices, chickens and much more. It sure wasn't clean and the market was on sandy ground. I walked further looking for a nicer place to fenster out.

Would you believe that there was a McDonald's? Unreal, but I didn't want to order anything but tea and a cookie. I left soon. But my "bedja" friend was nowhere to be seen. I walked on the street, but hardly anybody was around. My cell was worthless here and I didn't see anything that would have a

Finally, I saw a phone on the end of the street, but realized that I had no small change. Oh dear. It was getting dark. In Indonesia, it's dark very fast. And I didn't see a soul.

Then I heard a motorcycle and what do you know, it was the same lady that had picked me up from the plane. I was so glad and she told me that she was looking for me. I had to sit on the back of that thing. It was pitch dark and it was scary to say the least.

She took me back to the place. She told me never to be out in the dark and never say that you're Christian. And don't go all alone, it's dangerous.

So much for the first day in my birth country.

POETRY MATTERS A Poison Tree I was angry with my friend: I told my wrath, my wrath did end.

I was angry with my foe: I told it not, my wrath did grow.

And I watered it in fears Night and morning with my tears, And I sunned it with smiles And with soft deceitful wiles.

And it grew both day and night, Till it bore an apple bright, And my foe beheld it shine, And he knew that it was mine -

And into my garden stole When the night had veiled the pole; In the morning, glad, I see My foe outstretched beneath the tree.

William Blake, Songs of Experience

Anger management is not a twenty-first century invention. Over 300 years ago Blake wrote about the consequences of suppressed anger in the form of a parable about the dark side of experience. Poetry matters is curated by Lorine Parks.

Blessed with Grandbabies

By Maria Zeeman Contributor

Never in my younger life did think that I would be an "old lady", and now I am.

The amazing thing is that my family treated me with another grandson and two great grandsons around my birthday.

My son Guillermo, had another boy named Reis. He's healthy, lovely, and quite handsome already with his big blue eyes. He's a good baby, loved by everybody, especially by his sisters and brothers, his doting parents, their Oma (me) and their aunts Loretta and Beatrix.

The two great grandbabies are from my daughter Loretta's sons. Garland's baby's name is Zane. The grandbabies call us Oma and Oma-ma, which mean, grandma other and great grandma in Dutch. Actually Oma-ma" is made up by Zane's sister Shayla (3 years old). Great-grandmother was too long a name for her, she said. She is such a cute and determined girl, that we use her rewarded today. version of the said name. She is also delighted with her new brother and of course so are their parents.

Zane is the longest, least weighted baby of the three, also lovely. His dad is over 6 feet, so I'm sure he is going to be tall and handsome like his dad.

The other baby is from Casey, Loretta's oldest son. Baby's name is William, an old fashioned English name, I love it. He was the biggest one when he was born, and still is. He has big blue eyes and a big cute sweet smile, with sturdy strong little legs and lively body.

All three were born around my birthday in July 2019. Today, I have three children, 10 grandchildren, seven great grandchildren, and four more adopted once altogether.

Consider: it took me almost 10 years after marriage to finally get my first baby! No wonder I feel so lucky, blessed and

I'm selling my house but have termites. Do I have to pay for treatment?

In California and in almost all other states, sellers pay termite inspection costs. The cost is typically inexpensive, ranging from $50 to $150. Some termite companies even offer a free inspection in the hopes that they'll earn your business and can handle any necessary (and more expensive) treatment.

Section 1

Termite inspection reports describe items as either "Section 1" or "Section 2". Section 1 items typically fall into the closing costs for the seller, meaning sellers pay for these treatments. This includes the cost of remediation, like tenting or spraying to eliminate an active termite infestation. It also means paying for things like repair of dry rot or wood that has been chewed by termites.

Section 2

By contrast, buyers typically pay for Section 2 which is anything considered termite prevention. For example, a termite inspection report may state: "We advise that you move the soil away from touching the base of the house to reduce the odds of future termite problems." This line item would be considered a preventative recommendation and the financial obligation involved with the process would fall to the buyer.

Termites in an "As Is" Sale

An as-is sale occurs when the seller is not willing to make any repairs or spend money on any treatments. A seller opting not to make any termite repairs can actually cause issues for a buyer seeking a bank loan. Why? Since the home will become part of the bank's collateral, the bank doesn't want termites damaging

Because of this, it's very common for a bank to ask for a termite certificate prior to funding a loan. As with most things, this point is negotiable so buyers should be prepared to ask for a contingency stating the seller pays for a termite inspection, treatment, or both even on an as-is sale.

Another option is for the buyer to pay for it themselves, but if the seller is eager to close, they'll be willing to pick up the

Recommendations for

As the seller, you should expect to pay for the termite inspection cost and Section 1 termite treatment. If you negotiate an offer that states you are not responsible for paying for Section 1 remediation, make sure the buyer tracks whether or not the bank requires a termite certificate. If the bank requires one, be sure to schedule a termite inspection early so closing is not delayed.

SURE-FIRE WAYS to Make Your Home Sale SELF-DESTRUCT.

And How You Can Avoid Them.

Taking the wrong approach to selling your home can be a lot like lighting a fuse and hoping the bomb won't go off.

Mistake #1: Pricing With Your Heart, Not Your Head. An asking price not based on the most accurate and up-to-date market information can be instant death for a home sale. You need to know if you're asking too much or much too little.

7825 Florence Ave, Downey, CA 90240

Mistake #2: Selling in Your Spare Time. Getting your home sold takes more than just putting a sign on the lawn or an ad in the paper. You need to make sure the right prospects know about your home, and one missed phone call could be "the one that got away."

Mistake #3: Losing Your Ground in Ne go ti a tions. The com pli ca tions and technicalities of a real estate trans ac tion can confuse even a rocket sci en tist. The goal is to be in the driver's seat, and prep a ra tion is criti cal to pre servi ng your in ter ests.

Mis take #4: Finding Out Too Late That Your Buyer Isn't Quali fi ed. How can you tell if an interested buyer is really prepared to buy your home? Wasting time with the wrong person could cost you time in fi nding the right buyer.

Mistake #5: Forgetting to Set the Stage. Do you know the ten most com mon details buyers look for in a home? Sometimes the most minor cosmetic changes can make all the difference.

Mistake #6: Choosing the Wrong Real Estate Agent. All real estate agents make the same promises and provide the same services, so they're basically all the same, right? Wrong! The pro fessional you hire to help you with your sale can make all the dif-ference. How do you know what to look for?

Mistake #7: Not Calling Dale Jervis Before Selling Your Home. Dale Jervis has helped so many home sellers with these questions and more, he's prepared an in-depth brochure filled with all the information you need to make your sale successful Even if you don't choose to work with Dale, he'd still like to offer you this valuable resource. Simply call/text him at (562) 743-2121 today and ask for his brochure and FREE Seller's Report. There's absolutely no obligation, and you ouldn't want to sell your home without it, so call today!
